Berlin Reports All Well Aboard Freighter

ROUTE SECRET

American Envoy Assails 'Lack of Cooperation' Of Russia

Washington—The state department was advised officially from Berlin today that the seized American steamship City of Flint was still at Murnansk.

Alexander C. Kirk, American charge d'affaires at Berlin, reported he was told at the German foreign office late this afternoon (Berlin time) that the crew was still aboard.

Kirk said he was told also that after completion of repairs the ship were taken to another port, the American crew presumably would be kept on board to operate the vessel.

The American consul general at Hamburg reported to Kirk, the state department was advised, that the German prize commissioner there had received no news of the vessel.

Meanwhile, the Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt at Moscow, reported that he again was unable to speak on the telephone with the captain of the City of Flint at midnight last night (4 p. m. E.S.T., Friday) as he had hoped to do.

Steinhardt advised the state department that he again had been given to understand that the crew was well and that no illness was reported.

Board Will be Asked to Put Meade Street Link On County Road System

The improvement of Meade street as a connecting link between Appleton and Superhighway 41 to the north Friday was before a joint committee of Grand Chute town, city and county officials who decided to ask the county board to place the street, north of Wisconsin avenue, on the county trunk system.

The request will be submitted to the Outagamie county board at its meeting scheduled for Nov. 14.

The Meade street improvement problem has been boxed around between officials of Appleton and Grand Chute ever since the superhighway was completed but decision never was reached because of the question of which governmental body would absorb the cost.

Meade street connects Wisconsin avenue to the superhighway on the east border of Appleton. For a half mile, the street is abutted by Appleton property owners to the west and Grand Chute property owners to the east. At the half mile mark, the road is entirely in the town of Grand Chute for another half mile to the highway. This situation makes Appleton responsible for about a quarter of the street and Grand Chute, for the other three quarters.

New Paper Firm Will Operate in Mill at Kaukauna

Outagamie Mills, Inc., Will Occupy Former Patten Building

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau.—Two new paper manufacturing businesses top the list of the new business enterprises in northeastern Wisconsin which have recently filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state, records of the office showed today.

Outagamie Mills, Inc., organized by Appleton and Kaukauna persons, will do business in the city of Kaukauna, making and selling paper, paper products, and paper by-products, according to its articles.

The Falls Paper and Power Company at Oconto Falls, organized by Neenah, Menasha, and Green Bay individuals, will manufacture and sell pulp, paper and paper products, it is declared in the firm's articles on file at the capital.

The Outagamie Mills corporation will have a capital stock of 1,000 shares without nominal or par value. There will be a board of directors of five stockholders.

Persons forming the corporation are Milford J. Taylor of Appleton, Daniel E. McCarty of Kaukauna and Andrew J. Johnson of Appleton.

The new Kaukauna corporation will occupy the old Patten mill building which is owned by the city of Kaukauna. Contracts for the firm's occupancy of the building still are in the process of completion, according to Lewis F. Nelson, Kaukauna mayor, and it is expected that the company will not start operations for another month or two.

The Falls Paper and Power company will have 1,000 shares of no par value common stock, and its board of directors will consist of three stockholders: the articles prescribe. Directors will hold office for terms of one year.

Incorporators are Dr. George E. Forkin of Menasha, Margaret Taylor Forkin of Menasha, Janet Ewing of Green Bay, and Charlotte Smith of Neenah.

Articles have also been filed for the Morton Drug company of Menasha, with 100 shares of stock at $100 each. The firm will engage in the retail drug store business. Its incorporators are C. E. Morton, K. Morton, and H. E. Christofferson.

Snow Cruiser Lands in Bed of Small Stream

Lima, Ohio.—A huge Arctic snow cruiser intended for Admiral Richard E. Byrd's expedition struck a bridge and dropped about eight feet in the bed of a small stream six miles northwest of here today. The crew jumped to safety before the vehicle turned over on its side in shallow water.

A witness of the accident said that the cruiser, on its way from Chicago to Boston, struck a corner of the Pine Run bridge with a front fender and slid through a guard rail.

The cruiser had entered Ohio a few hours earlier.

First indications were that damage to the mammoth vehicle, designed to cover ice wastes near the south pole, was slight.

'Draft Roosevelt' Campaign Expected to be Started in Party Before End of Winter

W. B. RAGSDALE
Washington.—The White House disapproval of Secretary Wallace's third term proposal emphasizes the likelihood that a cry of "draft Roosevelt" will be ringing through the leafless trees before winter goes.

The town might be taken as a clear hint that President Roosevelt has no present intention of being an active candidate for a third term nomination. Yet, by no stretch of the imagination does it bar him from the running.

It puts stress on the inept timing of the Wallace declaration, even though made by a wholly loyal member of the Roosevelt official family. A fight for removal of the arms embargo was just reaching its critical stage in the senate.

CHARGED WITH DODGING TAXES

Otto P. Higgins (left), former Kansas City police director, and Matthew S. Murray, former Missouri WPA administrator, are shown as they appeared in federal court in Kansas City to post bond on charges of evading income tax payments.

Dies Threatens to Cite Union Head for Contempt When Latter Refers to Hearing as 'Circus'

Washington.—Chairman Dies (D-Texas) threatened today to cite Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime union (CIO) for contempt of the committee on un-American activities after the husky seaman's leader had called the hearing "a circus."

Curran and Dies engaged in an angry exchange when Rhea Whitley, committee counsel, asked Curran if the National Maritime union was a "communist-front organization."

"I tell you I resent very definitely . . .," he commenced, his large hands clenched on the top of the witness table.

When Curran demanded the right to read a written statement he and Dies began shouting at each other.

Nazi Police and Czechs in Clash

800 Persons Reported Under Arrest in Prague Outbreak

Prague.—German police and Czechs clashed here this afternoon while Czechs were celebrating the twenty-first anniversary of the foundation of the Czechoslovak republic.

There were numerous arrests. One estimate said that 800 persons were taken to German police headquarters as the result of this incident and others in other parts of the city.

The clash occurred in midafternoon when Czech crowds broke through a police cordon roping off Wenceslaus square, before the city hall, to prevent demonstrations before the statue of St. Wenceslaus, patron saint of the Czechs.

An argument between German SA men (brownshirts) and Czechs developed with special violence before the Hotel Sroubek.

Prague Germans tried to tear off the Czech insignia worn by demonstrators, witnesses said, and the Czechs fought back.

German police were summoned and they, with the aid of Czech state police, dispersed the crowd.

The Germans had placed a ban on public demonstrations and Wenceslaus square, in the heart of Prague, was barred off early in the morning.

Two German Aviators Killed and Pilot Is Captured in Scotland

London.—Two German aviators were killed, one wounded and a Nazi pilot captured today in an aerial drama of the skies witnessed by hundreds of Scots near Edinburgh when British fighter planes engaged and forced down a German warplane.

The air ministry announced that a German aircraft which was attempting reconnaissance was forced down by our fighters this morning east of Dalkeith (about six and one half miles southeast of Edinburgh).

Neenah Gridders Tip West DePere, 7 to 0

West DePere.—Neenah High school gridders scored their first Northeastern Wisconsin conference victory of the season when they upset West DePere by a 7 to 0 score here this morning. A fumble recovered by Bob Backstock on the DePere 30-yard line led to the Neenah marker in the second quarter.

Ray Smith passed to Eugene Caloway, an end, who lateraled to "Buck" Kettering on the touchdown play. Kettering fumbled but recovered in pay dirt. Clifton Bunker drop-kicked the extra point.

Congress Leaders See Quick House Neutrality Vote

France Rejoices Over Repeal Vote; Reich Maintains Silence

By the Associated Press
France welcomed with undisguised joy today the United States senate's vote to repeal the arms embargo, while Britain indicated it was "not dissatisfied" and Germany—where the news was withheld from the public—maintained silence.

Paris was informed by glaring headlines in the morning newspapers.

Stirred by the possibility of obtaining more American-made warplanes—which apparently have proved their dependability on the western front—the French cautiously considered the senate vote prophetic of an administration victory in the house.

In Britain, the senate vote caused some surprise in official quarters, which apparently had expected a stiffer fight. They suggested any comment before the issue has been decided in the house would be premature.

Diplomatic circles said unofficially, however, that Britain "at least would not be dissatisfied with the senate's decision."

The British press was more outspoken, seeing reason for encouragement. The Daily Mail commented:

"It cannot now be concealed that the prospect of such a vast war storehouse as America offers comes as a tonic encouragement to the nations fighting the cause of democracy."

While official comment was lacking in Berlin, the news apparently was not entirely unexpected there. A foreign office spokesman said no statement could be issued until after careful study.

Berlin's morning newspapers made no reference to the matter.

G.O.P. LEADER DIES

Dubuque, Iowa.—John T. Adams, 76, chairman of the National Republican committee from 1921 to 1924, died at his home here at 2 a. m. today after an illness of two months. He suffered a stroke yesterday morning. He would have been 77 on Dec. 22.

Father and Two Daughters Perish In Burning Home

Tragedy Results After Victim Pours Kerosene on Fire

Racine.—Nick Larsen, 32, and his two daughters, Wandell, 3, and Kathleen, 14 months, burned to death last night when kerosene poured on a coal stove fire puffed and turned their three-room cottage into a mass of flame.

Ronald Larsen, 4, and a friend of the family, Nels Rysgaard, escaped with minor injuries.

District Attorney Richard Hafvey said Rysgaard told the following story:

He and Larsen had purchased wine in Racine and returned to the Larsen cottage, a mile northwest of Racine, after Mrs. Larsen had gone to Racine to a card party.

Larsen then went to bed in a room where his daughters lay. Rysgaard and Ronald went to sleep in the living room.

Because it was cold, Rysgaard twice threw kerosene onto the coal stove fire. Then Ronald made an attempt and the explosion followed.

Rysgaard, in his underwear, and Ronald, in his sleepers, dashed from the blazing room into the kitchen and fled through a rear door. Rysgaard called to Larsen and received an answer but Larsen failed to emerge.

Racing firemen found Larsen's charred body in the living room, near the front door, which had been sealed for the winter. The bodies of the babies lay in their beds.

Vandenberg Boosters Map Organization Plan

Milwaukee.—Supporters of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan for the Republican presidential nomination met yesterday to plan extension of their organization throughout the state.

The tenth congressional district already has been organized, it was announced by E. W. Richardson of Ladysmith, a candidate for delegate-at-large for Vandenberg.

House Naval Committee May Act to Strengthen Atlantic Fleet on Permanent Basis

Washington.—Proposals to strengthen the navy's Atlantic squadron and put it on a permanent basis were shaping up today among members of the house naval committee.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) declined to discuss the question but indicated he would be ready with a legislative program for the navy in the near future.

Other committee men, however, talked of various possibilities, ranging from minor reinforcements for the present Atlantic squadron to a "two-ocean" navy.

The present Atlantic squadron consists chiefly of destroyers, although it includes three old battleships and some cruisers.

"Our naval policy has been predicated on assistance of the British navy if trouble developed in the Atlantic," said Representative Maas (R-Minn.), "but the current situation shows we can no longer rely on that plan in an emergency. Britain has her hands full in the North sea."

There also was talk in authoritative quarters today that the navy might declare a year's "holiday" on the building of battleships and concentrate on fast cruisers and destroyers.

The crowded condition of American ship yards was given as the primary reason. The keels of four new battleships have been laid and four others have been ordered. It was said that even if congress voted funds for additional battleships they could not be started for at least a year.

In addition, German raids on British shipping have emphasized the need for light, speedy surface craft, some experts said. Officials emphasized, however, they had undiminished confidence in the battleship as the backbone of naval power.

Fascists Ask Only Privilege of 'Going Forward,' Duce Says

Rome.—Premier Mussolini, speaking on the seventeenth anniversary of the fascist march on Rome, told a holiday crowd today that fascism asked only the privilege of "building and going forward."

"The anniversary of the ever more glorious blackshirt revolution finds us as compact and strong as ever from the Alps to the Indian ocean," said il duce, speaking from the balcony of his office.

"Today, as during the harsh bloody eve of revolution, fascism demands for itself only a single privilege, that of building and going forward always and in all circumstances with the people and for the people."

Launching of the 35,000-ton battleship Impero at Genoa was to have been the most warlike event on the day's program, but the launching was postponed indefinitely.

Most traditional was the handing of fascist party identification card number one to Premier Mussolini.

At Bolzano, a new fascist youth school for military specialists was opened but non-military accomplishments were stressed in most of the nation-wide ceremonies.

Wisconsin's Two Senators Agree On Arms Embargo

Wiley and LaFollette Cast Identical Votes on Most Amendments

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington—Wisconsin's two senators, Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., Madison, and Alexander Wiley, Chippewa Falls, maintained a strict isolationist stand on the neutrality bill throughout the roll call votes, but were almost always on the losing side.

When it was all over, Wiley said: "We've lost out. Now let's be good sports."

Both voted against repeal of the limited arms embargo and against passage of the bill which repeals the arms embargo and restores the "cash and carry" plan on all exports to warring countries. This provision of the present law expired last May, but the limited arms embargo remains in the law until the bill passed by the senate Friday night is finally enacted.

Wiley split with LaFollette on the LaFollette amendment to require an "advisory referendum" in which the people could vote to tell congress whether they wanted this country to engage in an offensive war on foreign soil. The LaFollette amendment, which was defeated, provided that the referendum would not be taken in the United States or any of its possessions, or any western hemisphere republic is invaded or threatened with invasion.

Wiley voted and spoke against the LaFollette amendment, although he himself said it was similar to a constitutional amendment he introduced last May. Wiley said he thought the amendment had no place in this bill, that it is unwarrantable, and that it is unconstitutional as a statute, because he believes a constitutional amendment is needed.

How They Voted
LaFollette spoke for his amendment, pleading that the people be granted the right to say whether they will fight on foreign soil.

On other amendments, all of which were defeated, the Wisconsin senators voted as follows:

Both to tighten the credit provision by requiring that, before title to goods is transferred to a foreign government, the price must be wholly paid in legal United States money.

Both for limiting armed merchant ships from United States ports; Both for the Nye substitute bill which would have continued and tightened the embargo;

Both for making the neutrality proclamation mandatory instead of allowing the president to determine, when a war starts, whether it is necessary to proclaim neutrality "to protect the security or preserve the peace of the United States or to protect the lives of citizens of the United States";

LaFollette against and Wiley for the amendment to strike out the authority for congress to proclaim neutrality in case the president does not do so in a war.

Both for the LaFollette amendment to put a quota, based on peacetime averages, on all exports to warring countries;

Both for the amendment to add two senators and two representatives to the national munitions board;

Both for the amendment to establish a 300-mile zone around Europe into which no American ship could go;

Both for the amendment to prohibit export of airplanes until the United States armed forces have at least 3,000 planes;

LaFollette for and Wiley absent on the vote to split the embargo provisions from the cash-and-carry provisions;

Both for prohibiting sales of poison gas to warring countries;

Both for banning all sales of arms and munitions and implements of war to all countries, in peacetime or wartime, except American republics defending themselves against a non-American state;

Both for the Taft amendment to prohibit use of more than $50,000,000

Escape Injury as Car Clears River In 60-Foot Leap

Chicago—(P)—Three Chicago motorists could put in a safe bid today for the record automobile leap of the year.
Ernest Lee, 28, Carl Larson, 30, and Michael Moynacki, 52, suffered only minor injuries last night when their car hit the stone base of a cemetery fence on Foster avenue and then hurtled the Chicago river—a 60 foot leap.

Gruska Charges Heil Failed to Balance Budget

Assemblyman Invited to Give Further Information on Lobby Statement

Mosinee, Wis.—(P)—The Heil state administration today stood accused by Assemblyman Anthony Gruska (R) of being a failure "as relates to the balancing of the state budget."

The representative from Marathon county's first district gave his reasons in the following statement: "First—the administration has failed because secretaries have assumed a dictatorial attitude on agricultural questions, principally Mr. (August) Frey, an ex-employee of the Harley-Davidson Cycle company, who knows nothing about agriculture."

"Second—the inability of Mr. Frey, Mr. (William) Maas and Mr. (Elmer) Barlow to maintain operating contact with members of the legislature.

(Maas is Governor Heil's executive secretary, and Barlow a legal adviser.)

"Third—the assumption that men have to be either members of the Milwaukee club, have a million dollars or be the 32nd degree.

"Fourth—the inability to bring down the cost of government by being responsible for increases in appropriations which are unwarranted. Departments can cut costs the required 25 per cent and use up continuing balances from previous years which the budget report shows as available."

Gruska added: "A lobbyist offered me two hundred dollars for (my) vote on the reorganization of the public service commission, in the taproom of the Lorraine hotel (at Madison)."

ASKS INFORMATION
Madison—(P)—District Attorney Norris E. Maloney awaited a reply today to a telegram sent to assemblyman Anthony Gruska, Mosinee, inviting the assemblyman to shed further light on his charge that a lobbyist offered him $200 for his vote on the public service commission reorganization bill.

Maloney wired the invitation last night, asking Gruska to come here either today or tomorrow for conferences.

The district attorney declined to say definitely what he would do if Gruska failed to appear.

The reorganization bill was one of those which died without final action when the legislature adjourned. It was part of the administration's program for abolishing three man commissions and was the subject of a bitter fight in the assembly.

of the stabilization fund to buy currencies of any warring country;

Both for the Taft amendment to prohibit any governmental agency from lending money to assist exports of any kind to any warring country;

When the senate had passed the bill, Wiley was the first to go congratulate Sen. Key Pittman of Nevada, chairman of the foreign relations committee, who led the fight for the bill. Wiley, in his speech on the bill, had stated he did not think repeal of the embargo, or failure to repeal it, would lead this country into war, but that he would vote against repeal because he was convinced his constituents oppose repeal.

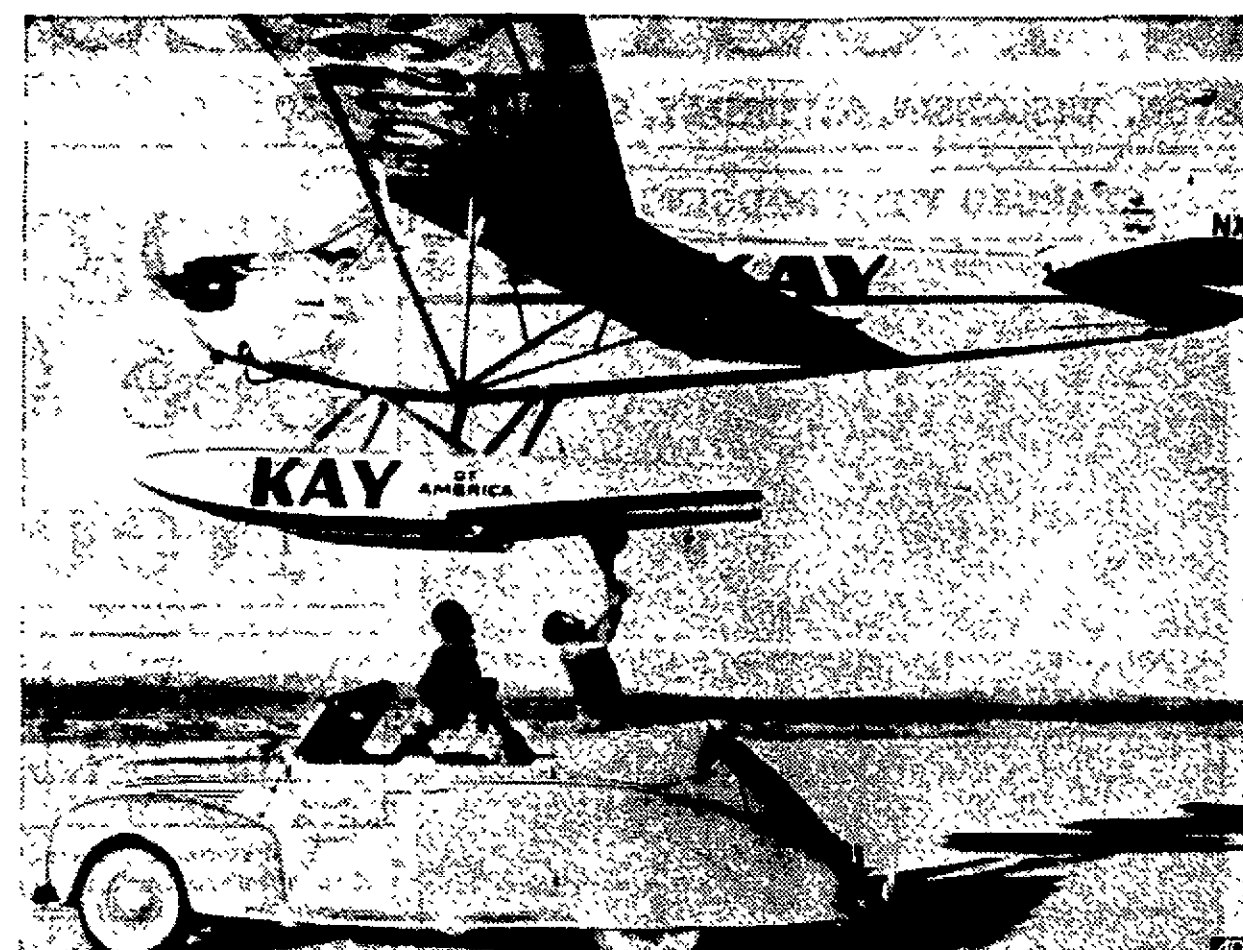

Anyone with only one eye could see that the men who designed the clubhouse love the water and boats, for the place breathes a nautical atmosphere. The walls are of knotty pine, naturally finished and the main ceiling light is a boat's tiller with lights from a boat's stern. Cabin lights are spaced along the walls with small fillers for backgrounds and the curtains are fish nets with bobbles for decorations. Red Venetian blinds, made by a member, are on the windows.

Private Bar
A fully equipped bar of finished knotty pine fits into one side. Stools finished in chrome with red leather seats will set off the bar. Tables, chairs and a settee in the same color scheme are ordered.

The building is heated with an oil burner, blower type and with air conditioning. The floor is of pine, covered with linoleum, and the ceiling is of a composition material.

The club intends to build a stone wall along the river bank to the west as far as the boat slips go. The dock will be fenced from the roadway and will be locked at all times. A front yard with grass and shrubs, is planned, and the rest of the area in the front of the building will be used for parking.

The club was incorporated in 1932 by Koch and Leo Schroeder and now has about 25 boats.

ENDURANCE FLIGHT RECORDS SMASHED AGAIN
Flying their pontoon-equipped light plane over the desert above Lancaster, Cal., two Southern California fliers, Clyde Schlieper and Wes Carroll, have broken all endurance flight records by remaining in the air past the 65th hour. Their plane is shown getting a fuel load from the ground crew in a speeding car.

Germans Report 'All Well' Aboard Captured Vessel

Germany. At present, however, nothing was known except that it was possible sometime next week.

Near Norway's Coast
Official advice last night placed the freighter somewhere along the Norwegian coast. The prize crew was expected to steer the City of Flint close to the Norwegian coast as far as the Skagerrak, arm of the North sea, thence to the port of destination by a route impossible to predict.

(Reports from Norway indicated the City of Flint was being sailed in Norwegian waters to minimize the possibility of running afoul of the British navy. Unconfirmed reports at Bergen were that the American crew might be landed there.)

(Release of the City of Flint from Murnansk was followed up at Moscow by United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt with an expression of his indignation at the lack of cooperation by the Soviet government in withholding information on the ship.)

(The state department published last night Steinhardt's report on an interview with Soviet Russia's Vice Commissar of Foreign Affairs Vladimir Potemkin.

Release Demanded
(Steinhardt reported his representations and said Potemkin told him Russia had decided to send the freighter out "in the same status as she had entered"—with both American and German crews aboard and the cargo still in the holds.)

(The United States had demanded that the freighter be released to her American crew.)

(Steinhardt quoted Potemkin as saying the German prize crew reported that damaged machinery made the City of Flint unseaworthy, necessitating her putting in at Murnansk. Potemkin said, "assumed" this point had been verified by Murnansk authorities.)

(The ambassador further quoted Potemkin as arguing that in the opinion of his government turning the vessel over to the American crew would have been an unneutral act unless the prize crew refused to take the freighter away.)

The German high command, meanwhile, acknowledged, that the loss of "three (German) submarines" must be counted on in view of their long absence."

The high command also reported that since the beginning of the war at least 115 merchant ships with an aggregate tonnage of 475,321 had been sent to the bottom by Germany.

"Inasmuch as unconfirmed reports are not included in this compilation," a communique said, "it must be assumed that the actual figures are considerably higher."

As to the war on the western front, it reported "somewhat livelier activity" and between the Moselle river and the Palatinate forest and said a small enemy advance west of Warndt had been repulsed.

McWhorter Named To International Joint Commission

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt today appointed Roger B. McWhorter, civil engineer of Rv. erton, Ala., to be a member of the international joint commission which supervises the boundary between the United States and Canada.

McWhorter, 51, is chief engineer of the federal power commission. He will remain in this post and perform his additional duties without pay.

His appointment followed an announcement by the president yesterday that the three non-governmental American members of the commission would be replaced by federal officials in order to save money and give the commission expert technical assistance in connection with boundary questions arising from negotiation of a new St. Lawrence waterway treaty with Canada.

McWhorter succeeds Eugene Lorton of Tulsa, Okla., who resigned after the president had announced his intention to reorganize the commission.

John H. Bartlett, former governor of New Hampshire also has resigned from the commission, effective Nov. 1. The third member, A. O. Stanley, former senator from Kentucky, is expected to resign in a few months.

DIES AT MILWAUKEE

er word of the captured American freighter, City of Flint today after belated receipt of information that soviet officials had ordered the vessel to leave Russian waters with a German prize crew in charge.

Presumably, the ship was on her precarious way down the North sea to Hamburg. Unconfirmed reports from Bergen, Norway, said, however, that the Germans would land the American crew there.

Laurence A. Steinhardt, United States ambassador, sent word from Moscow that the City of Flint had left Murnansk in the "same status as she entered" which meant that the German crew was in charge, the American crew on board and the cargo intact. The ship was captured by a German raider while en route to England with a cargo that included some contraband.

The United States demanded possession of the vessel, contending Germany had no right to take a prize ship to a neutral port. But Vladimir Potemkin, assistant commissar of foreign affairs, told Steinhardt that to accede to the demand would be "an unneutral act."

Officials here were resentful at the fact that Steinhardt was not granted an earlier interview with Potemkin and that the soviet government released news of the vessel to Tass, official news agency, before giving it to the American envoy.

Potemkin told Steinhardt it was his understanding that the Americans on board the ship were all well.

Mercury Skids to 28-Degree Level

Strong Northwest Wind Routs Rain, Fog, Unseasonal Warm Weather

Freezing temperatures rode into Wisconsin last night and today on a 20-mile northwest wind, routing rain, fog and unseasonal warm weather. Mercury skidded to 28 degrees in Appleton and vicinity at 6 o'clock this morning. Wisps of snow appeared during the morning.

Fair skies are predicted for tonight with partly cloudy weather and rising temperatures forecast for Sunday.

The highest temperature during the 24-hour period preceding 9 o'clock this morning was 49 degrees at 9 o'clock Friday morning, according to records at the power plant of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

Maximum and minimum temperatures in the nation yesterday were 91 degrees at San Antonio, Texas, and 4 degrees at Bismarck, N. D., according to the Associated Press.

The state's minimum—22—was recorded at Park Falls. The mercury dropped to 25 at Wausau, 27 at Ladysburg, 28 at Green Bay, and 29 at Madison.

Wardens Use Dog to Find Illegal Game

Denver—(P)—Colorado game wardens are using the hunter's best friend, the bird dog, to convict him of illegally shooting quail and pheasants.

Chief Warden John Hart explained dogs can sniff out birds hidden in an automobile or horse pack that a warden might miss.

"When a dog freezes with his tail in the air and his nose pointed at a car where birds are hidden, the poacher is practically in court paying his fine," Hart said.

Relief Commissioners To Meet at Waupaca

Nation-Wide Lutheran Hour Broadcasts Resume Oct. 29

ST. LOUIS—(Special)—The Lutheran Hour, featuring the sermons of the noted theologian, Dr. Walter A. Maier of Concordia Seminary, will be resumed Sunday, October 29, over a coast-to-coast network of 81 stations.

An advocate of Christian life founded on the Scriptures, Dr. Maier listeners as a result of 28 Sunday afternoon broadcasts. The total one week was 10,000 letters, representing persons of many denominations and including clergymen of other churches.

As a result of his broadcasting activities since 1931, Dr. Maier has become the spiritual confidant of thousands of persons lacking church connections. His correspondents have included the governors of several states, a leading Hollywood executive, an industrialist with a "front-page" name, prisoners in several penitentiaries, a 17-year-old girl who had never been to church and wanted to know what clothes to wear, and miners, soldiers, forest rangers and others in isolated places far from any church.

Graduate of Boston University, Concordia Seminary and Harvard, Dr. Maier is a full-time professor at the seminary. His Lutheran Hour activities are carried on in his leisure hours with the assistance of a large staff of volunteer workers who, like Dr. Maier himself, are compensated only by the satisfaction gained from participation in one of the great evangelistic enterprises of all time.

Noted Choral Singing
Resumption of the broadcasts will also mark the return of two favorite spiritual choral groups—the Lutheran Hour Chorus and the St. Louis A Cappella Choir. The Lutheran Hour Chorus is composed of 30 voices selected from the nationally-known Concordia Seminary Students' Chorus, and the choir is a mixed chorus of 55 voices whose annual concerts have been heard in many cities. Both groups are trained and directed by the distinguished choral master, William B. Heyne.

The program will be broadcast twice each Sunday for 26 weeks—our local time being from 3:30 to 4:00 o'clock over WCFL or WISN.

French Say They Have Proof of Nazi U-Boat's Sinking

Report Bodies of German Sailors Found Floating Off Coast

Paris—(P)—Proof of the sinking of a German submarine last Thursday was said by French military sources to have been established today coincident with semi-official announcement that French armed vessels and seaplanes had been particularly active.

"Several direct attacks have been carried out and it appears one of these at least has been successful," the statement said.

Bodies of five German sailors and a German officer were reported found off the coast, establishing proof, the French said, of destruction of the submarine which "apparently had been literally torn apart by the explosion of a depth bomb."

The location of the attack was not disclosed.

(Dispatches from Dover, England, reported yesterday the bodies of more than 50 German seamen had been recovered from a submarine washed up on Goodwin sands, five miles from the Kent coast. It was not immediately clear whether the French announcement referred to this incident.)

Sharing attention with the announcement of this naval success were two executions for espionage—the first reported in France since the start of the war.

Two Are Executed
A military firing squad carried out the sentence of Dr. (Dr. Karl) Roos, 60-year-old Alsatian, an aviator leader, and a soldier companion named Lobstein, who were convicted of treason and espionage in behalf of Germany.

Six other defendants, convicted by the same court martial, were sentenced to serve prison terms ranging from three years to life.

All eight were charged with having furnished German agents with details of the movements of French troops in March 1938 when Germany occupied the Rhineland, and in September, 1938, during the Czechoslovak crisis.

The French general staff, meanwhile, continued to watch ostentatious German military preparations in the Saarland, which they believed might be designed to distract attention from a surprise move elsewhere along the western front.

The German preparations were so obvious that on well-informed military commentators suggested the nazis might be planning an attack between Wissembourg and the Rhine—east of the Saar—with a simultaneous thrust through The Netherlands on the north.

Possible Naval Bases
Such attacks, this commentator said, might give Germany badly needed naval bases in The Netherlands and an entry to France's Alsace-Lorraine plain.

(Germany has denied intention of violating the neutrality of The Netherlands.)

The French themselves played a waiting game as floods aided their defensive strategy. The Rhine was reported to have risen 45 inches as a result of recent rains.

Military sources reported units as strong as 150 men were used by the Germans in local attacks at various parts of the front yesterday and that all attacks were repulsed. These sources declared that German artillery fire along the 100 miles between the Rhine and the Moselle was growing in intensity.

The announcement concerning the German submarine said the crew had attempted to escape in deep water through the conning tower or torpedo tubes with the aid of mechanical lungs. The number of bodies recovered was not specified.

Royal Air Force Spends Most Of Its Time Taking Pictures Of German Defenses in West

BY DREW MIDDLETON
With the R. A. F. in France—(P)—(Delayed—Passed by Field Commission)—The royal air force, newest and most glamorous of Great Britain's fighting services, is spending most of its time in France on the workaday job of photographing enemy defenses and communication lines.

I visited today a huge airfield where aided by every modern invention to overcome the ancient enemies of mud and weather, a squadron of the R. A. F. is preparing a photographic study with the Germans as "sitters."

The unit does everything connected with the job. It takes the pictures, develops them and sends them to general headquarters or to French artillery units which use the photographs as a basis for shell enemy objectives.

The planes at this field were being used strictly for reconnaissance. Others like them participated in the famous "pamphlet raids."

It was one of these planes which performed one of the war's most daring feats—a flight 600 feet above the Siegfried line with a camera snapping while the Germans, who apparently thought it was one of their planes, waved gaily at the pilot and crew. I asked an officer what the pilot had done.

"Oh, he waved back at them," the officer said.

When a plane returns from one of these photographic missions, the films go directly to self-contained development units which, like everything else in the British army, are highly mobile. These units look like old fashioned croquet mallets, but the equipment is the newest obtainable. One was shown to me almost reverently by an R. A. F. sergeant, who said if the Germans started attacking he thought it would be "the busiest place in France."

Map Siegfried Line
Photographs taken so far have mapped almost the entire Siegfried line. In addition, the airmen have picked up singularly clear views of railroads, highways and ammunition bases.

The number of men used on the ground to put one man in the air ranges between nine and ten. The planes must be camouflaged and overhauled, and fuel and food has to be brought up to feed men and ships.

The R. A. F. is supplied by bases scattered the length and breadth of France. From them, a squadron can get anything from an engine or a wing to a pair of rubber boots.

League Head Threatens Suit Against Rep. Dies
Philadelphia—(P)—A threat to sue Representative Martin Dies (D-Texas) over his charges that the American League for Peace and Democracy is "communist-controlled" stirred 300 league members today as they met in executive conference amid a national storm of controversy about the organization.

Dr. Harry F. Ward, Union Theological seminary professor and chairman of the league since 1934, declared last night in an interview that if Dies "will waive his congressional immunity we'll slap a libel suit on him."

"I'm calling his bluff," Dr. Ward said as the meeting began.

Mailing List of League Published In Investigation

Dies Committee Claims Organization Is "Communist Controlled"

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington — If the American League for Peace and Democracy is "communist controlled" in fact, and if it can be proved that this organization advocates the overthrow of America's constitutional form of government, then members of such an organization who are government workers are now threatened with loss of their jobs.

It develops that there is already legislation on the state books covering that point. The Hatch law has a provision in it, limiting the time of passage last August, which says:

"It shall be unlawful for any person employed in any capacity by any agency of the federal government, whose compensation, or any part thereof, is paid from funds authorized or appropriated by any act of congress, to have membership in any political party or organization which advocates the overthrow of our constitutional form of government in the United States."

"Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be immediately removed from the position or office held by him, and thereafter no part of the funds appropriated by any act of congress for such position or office shall be used to pay the compensation of such person."

But is the American League for Peace and Democracy such an organization and does membership in it constitute a violation of law on the basis of the proof offered? While the Dies committee unanimously contends that the league is "communist controlled," does this mean that the members of the league believe in communist doctrines? This has yet to be proved.

Many government workers who are on the "mailing list" of the league resent bitterly the publicity that has been given their names. They do not feel that being on a "mailing list" is the same as being a member, or that, being a member, they should be chastised on the basis of the proof offered thus far. One government employee writes as follows:

"I am on their mailing list. Some months ago, a man came to my door who is a member asked that I contribute a dollar to help the cause. I sympathized with most of the professed purposes of the organization and contributed the dollar. Yesterday my name appeared under headlines proclaiming the presence of 'reds' in the government."

"I resent the implication. No one loves and reveres America and its traditions more than I, a native-born citizen. My folks are Republican and I am Democratic. I was brought up to believe that America stood for free speech."

"I have always felt that as an American I must smite hard at every evidence of injustice or discrimination. And if the league professes to stand for these principles, I am not ashamed to be on their mailing list. And I challenge the Americanism of anyone who challenges an American citizen's right to have such a creed, be he even a government employee."

"The league is said to be 'communist-controlled.' I have read the testimony very carefully and have yet to find any further proof of this other than the fact that there may be communist membership, even at this time. None of the members I know are communists; none has ever been in contact with communistic influence. I do not refuse to contribute to the community chest because communists probably do, although I hate and despise all that communism stands for."

"Sordid Procedure"

The question then turns on the propriety of the action of the Dies committee in making public a mailing list, presumably because it did not have an accurate membership list. President Roosevelt calls this a "sordid procedure." Differences of opinion always arise as to the behavior of congressional committees when they invade the private rights of citizens. Thus it will be recalled that the White House did not frown on the unwarranted use by the famous lobby committee of private telegrams, a committee headed by former Senator Black of Alabama. Indeed, the senator was later elevated to the supreme court of the United States. Likewise, when a congressional committee published a list of alleged tax irregularities on the part of prominent business men, no such delicacy was felt about the procedure and the public was left to infer that men who took advantage of lawful provisions were guilty of some sort of tax evasion.

Two wrongs, of course, do not make a right and the improper use of men's names and reputations is, indeed, a "sordid procedure" when the facts do not justify disclosures. It will be interesting to see what proof can be offered that the individuals who joined the league for peace and democracy knew anything of its communistic affiliations or connections. The Dies committee doubtless will wish to give all whose names are mentioned an opportunity to clear themselves of any connection with communism.

Highway Fund Diversion Won't Solve Deficit Problem Because There's No Money to Divert

(Editor's Note: During recent months the proposal to "divert" state highway revenues—receipts from the gasoline sales tax and license fees—from the highway commission to the state general fund as an aid to the solution of the state treasury deficit has been widely discussed. In order to present the facts on the possibility of such a way out of the Republican administration's financial dilemma, the following article was prepared.)

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Diversion of state highway funds for general state purposes can no longer be advanced as a solution of the Heil administration's treasury deficit this year because the state government has been spending highway receipts for general governmental purposes during every month of the year, and because highway receipts as a result will be inadequate to meet existing contractual highway obligations and for highway purposes, according to the best official information available.

At the time of the discussion of the state financial situation during the recent session of the legislature, "highway diversion" was confidently advanced by persons inside and without the administration as an easy way out of the problem.

But whether it was recognized publicly or not, the state has resorted to "diversion" in order to honor current ordinary obligations ever since Governor Heil took over the reins of the state government, and during most of the months of the preceding administration.

That is shown factually in the circumstance that the balance owing the highway commission by the state general fund has grown steadily.

Secretary of state's records show that the treasury owes the highway department, technically payable at the latter's demand, a total of approximately $26,000,000.

But the state general fund balance on Sept. 1 was only about $4,000,000, and even with recent increases in receipts arising out of the collection of the new cigarette tax, the amount available in the treasury is less than a fourth owing the highway department.

Moreover, late this summer the highway commission had contracts obligating it for the payment of $7,000,000 on the completion of state highway construction contracts this fall. When the contracts are met, the treasury probably will have an actual deficit.

Further, the highway commission by law is required on Dec. 15 to pay out an additional $3,700,000 to local units of government in a highway privilege tax payment, which during recent years has been paid by the state to its local subdivisions to replace revenues lost through legislative repeal of the former personal property tax on automobiles.

State highway receipts are paid into the general fund, pooled with other state revenues, but credited to the account of the highway commission. Thus when the state government uses highway receipts, the balance due the commission grows. That is exactly what it has done in recent months.

From the steady decrease in the size of the general fund of the state since Jan. 1, it is obvious that not only has diversion been practiced while legislators and others discussed its feasibility and practicability, but that such diversion is inefficient to maintain solvency for the state treasury.

Default Payments

While the contracts made by the state for state highway construction this summer and fall must be paid, a treasury deficit may be averted at an early date by the default on the privilege dividend tax payment to the localities, assuming that monthly receipts from gasoline taxes and motor vehicle fees continue to go into governmental channels.

But during the remainder of the year there will be demands on the treasury for other highway purposes, which can be ignored, but only at the cost of much complaint and possible political repercussions.

The highway commission has budgeted, for the current year, $5,100,000 for maintenance of the state trunk highway system, and $1,500,000 for snow removal.

Although many "diversionists" insist that the state can spare new highway construction during a period of financial crisis, few have suggested that maintenance and snow removal work be neglected or suspended. Both, it is felt, would have serious effects in obstructing the state traffic system.

Therefore, since the state has already committed itself, in contracts, for $7,000,000 worth of highway construction for 1939, diversion as a substitute for new revenue is no longer a possibility.

The best for which the administration can hope is that the highway fund will furnish more substantial help during the second year of the biennium, the fiscal year beginning next July 1. The state highway budget annually calls for about $5,000,000 worth of highway construction, plus amounts supplied by the federal government. By the simple expedient of refusing to put his signature on the highway contracts, Governor Heil can gain the first amount for budget purposes, which would be "diversion". The federal aids, while they may be sacrificed because of the matching conditions under which they are offered, at any rate would not be available for the state treasury.

But for the present year the word "diversion" can no longer hold the charm which it recently possessed by revenue-worried legislators and members of the governor's secretariat. Unofficially, and without public announcement beyond the facts contained in the monthly treasury statement, the state government has used the "diversion" method to such an extent that remaining highway obligations for this year may not be paid.

The administration will either be

You remember why, don't you? Certainly. It was "to see what he could see."

And it's for just this same beautifully simple reason that thousands of knowing people run through the advertisements in their daily newspapers.

For, it seems, civilized men and women are seldom satisfied with their lot. In this ever-producing age they have an insatiable appetite for something new which may make life brighter. That something may be an electric razor, or new clothes . . . a good book, or a ride in a streamlined train.

So they turn the newspaper pages to see what they can see. There they're able to find what it is, why it is, where it is, and how much it is. And the advertisements say, "Come and get it!"

Both Sides Claimed Advantage As World War of 25 Years Ago Approached Its Fourth Month

BY VIOLA HELLERMANN

An embarrassment similar to that which Great Britain suffered in the present war when a German submarine sank an English battleship in an English harbor was experienced by that country 25 years ago, when the World war of 1914-1918 was not yet three months old.

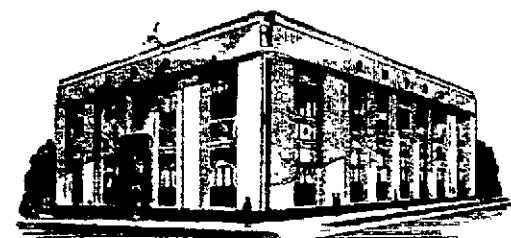

Alarmed over the discovery that the Germans had secret bases for their air craft in Scotland, the English put up posters in all Scottish towns offering 100 pounds ($500) to anyone who could give information leading to the discovery of locations being used by the Germans as oil and petrol bases for zeppelins.

That was really some of the most spectacular war news that appeared in Appleton's two daily newspapers during the last week of October, 1914. Either the censors were repressing the news or the situation was actually as unchanged as it had been reported in the last few weeks.

Another news item that should have been a big story—the sinking of 13 British merchantmen in the Atlantic by the German cruiser, Karlsruhe—was given only a few lines in an inconspicuous place in one paper and not mentioned at all in the other. Although the report came from London, it apparently was not official and American editors seemed to give it no credence.

A STRANGLEHOLD ON MILK

A company with a number of stores in Boston started selling milk at 2 cents less than the home delivery price. Its business increased rapidly. It said it was making money. Then the powers got together and passed a new law not only prohibiting store sold milk to be priced more than a cent below home delivered milk but added, for good measure, that all milk sold in paper containers, which reduces delivery cost substantially, must be priced one cent above bottled milk. After that law went into effect milk consumption in the Boston area dropped 100,000 quarts a day.

Such is one of the examples plucked at random from the devastating article in the November Fortune revealing how dairymen have been badgered and shackled by laws and practices created by various pressure groups to the dismal impairment of the far flung milk industry.

When it is considered that the milk business is one of the biggest in the country, far outstripping the automobile industry, and in fact accounting for nearly 20 per cent of all farm income; and that under prevailing practices the consumption of this article in the United States has dropped about seven per cent per capita during as many years, and appears to be steadily on the downward although the people actually need about 80 quarts more milk per person per annum to consume the minimum amount essential for their own health, perhaps it is time for the country to stand up and fight that the dairymen may be cleared of the laws and the rackets, political and otherwise, that bind his hands and feet and even tape his eyes.

Fortune Magazine has a reputation for going into things carefully and thoroughly and without any regard for consequences. It is impartial. Certainly it is sincere in its battle to clear the dairyman of that Old Man of the Sea he has been carrying on his back for quite some time.

Laws, laws and still more laws sound out in doleful dirge the funeral march of this great industry. Laws here, laws there, state laws, federal laws, county laws and city laws, everybody with a law until by the time the industry runs the gauntlet of the laws it has run a large share of its business into the ground. Thus:

"San Francisco has an ordinance that pasteurization plants must be within the city. Since city land is very high in price, new plants have been discouraged and 'raiders' kept out. Santa Clara county requires all milk sold to be pasteurized and bottled within the county."

"In San Francisco union members called on grocery stores and asked them not to buy from Clara-Cal, a small group of dairy farmers selling through independent grocery stores at one cent below the going store price."

"In Oakland, another cooperative met the same treatment and was further discouraged when only 25 per cent of its bottles came back intact."

"The high price of labor factors on another occasion was the needling of paper containers with a hypodermic syringe filled with lemon juice. The milk inside was soured and the brand got a bad name with the housewife."

"An even more powerful weapon in price maintenance is the ability of health authorities to limit the milk supply by refusing to inspect and license farmers who want to sell in the city."

Fortune agrees that the dairyman must sell more milk and that he simply cannot do it by keeping an artificially high price. It takes examples from Detroit, Chicago, Washington and Los Angeles and demonstrates that the farmer can receive the same price he is now paid but that consumption will be greatly increased and the dairy industry as greatly benefited when barriers are removed that now saddle the consumer with an unnecessarily high price, and therefore clip the amount he buys.

Meadowmoor Dairies created a stir in Chicago by making low cost sales of milk through independent grocery stores. But it repeated to Fortune that it had "to fight labor, big business and the Department of Agriculture itself."

Fortune concludes:
"If fluid milk is five cents to farmers and twelve and a half cents to housewives, then with adjustments that will do no violence to present economic beliefs, milk can be distributed so as to bring the farmer the same five cents or better and cost the average housewife from nine to ten cents a quart at the outside. In fact, one large chain of stores is in a position to sell milk four and a half cents under the average home delivered price and still make a profit."

But it would be a mistake for the dairyman as he reads the details of how his business has been strait-jacketed to conclude that he is wholly without blame. For the farmer has been one of the first to resort to laws to create conditions that laws never can successfully create.

Laws that have to do with standards of purity, trademarks, trade names and the like are not only legitimate but nearly as old as civilization's knowledge.

But laws that have to do with killing competition, tying someone else's arms, tripping someone else's feet can only be let loose upon the public with the understanding one has when he tosses dynamite bombs around—that is, others may pick them up and toss them back.

Nor is it necessary to accuse those responsible for this condition of constantly sinister designs or purposes. It is only necessary to accuse them of shortsightedness. To accept an immediate gain, whether by politicians, labor leaders or big business is a constant human failing. If we are to keep this essential industry free, which will benefit everyone, though not always immediately, we must tear down a whole stack of foolish laws, talk turkey to numerous, capable politicians who have been misled by their own hopes, and return the dairy industry to the category of free enterprise.

55 A HEAD AT THE STARVING UNIVERSITY

Perhaps as good an example as any currently offered of the frequently incongruous workings of our governmental system is the opening on the University of Wisconsin campus in the fall of 1939 of a student theatre which cost nearly a million dollars.

President Dykstra of the university recently made a speech to the new university board of regents, installed by Governor Heil in his program of reorganization and economy. The first budget cuts ordered by the Republican administration, he said, were accepted without extreme hardship or damage to the school. But the second sweep of the axe which threatened he reported with trepidation. The regents agreed with him, dispatched a messenger to the other end of Madison's State street to plead with the governor's emergency board against further reductions in the university's funds.

But at about the same time the university faculty, the regents, President Dykstra, and it is hoped, at least some of the students, attended the premiere in the New Union theatre structure. Tickets were sold at $5 each, and each bore an engraved notice demanding formal evening clothes. It is presumed that they saw a good show in the $900,000 palace.

To ordinary folks it will seem like a contradiction that a university president will beg to be spared when the broken treasury forces economy while at the same time a grandiose public building is reared on his own campus. That the cost was met by the generous government at Washington and by borrowings in anticipation of student fees to be paid in the years to come, won't make much difference in the public mind.

Unless conditions have changed very recently, there are still young men sitting in cold garrets of Madison rooming houses, eating sparingly of poor foods, working at odd jobs at ridiculous wages, while they wait hopefully for graduation day. They are still standing in line at the university hospital, hoping to be called to sell a pint of their blood. They are still ringing residential door bells for a chance to mow lawns, shovel sidewalks, carry ashes, acting as menials while others of their generation play, all for the money which will enable them to enjoy the opportunity for the higher education which they treasure. There are still instructors and junior faculty members working for salaries at which the bricklayers and carpenters we know would scoff. University officers testify that library stacks are old and out of date, that classrooms are crowded, some of its equipment obsolete. Most of all, they swear that Heil will ruin the school if he again raids its budget.

But proudly they open the biggest and most expensive modern theater in the Midwest, built with public and borrowed money.

John Citizen wonders, and he will be wise to wonder more.

YESTERDAY WAS NAVY DAY

"The way of a ship in the sea," has been one of man's marvels since first he recorded his thoughts.

But the color, grace and attraction of our Armada these days thrill the American through and through for other and more practical reasons.

In a world that still has savage instincts on the loose America creates for its millions a formidable protection through its navy. Great gratification comes from reading of the torments of our navy in comparison to others.

But security is an elusive thing. Navies are long in building. A trained and efficient corps is equally slow in rounding up to man the various instruments of protection.

We think the American people are committed to the maintenance of the world's greatest navy. That is hardly a controversial subject. One might as well ask whether it were advisable to wear shoes in Wisconsin in January.

Neither is the maintenance of the navy a political subject. Its indispensable character is so evident the country will lose no time in everlastingly supporting it.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—It was 43 years ago today that "Liberty Enlightening the World" was mounted on her pedestal on Bedloe's Island in lower New York bay.

A great many things can be said about Miss Liberty. In 43 years of carrying the torch for freedom, the Lady has had time to do a lot of thinking. Fortunately for her, like the Scarecrow in "The Wizard of Oz," she had no brain, and, like the Tin Man, no heart, Lucky Lady! She has been saved a lot of worry on one hand and heartbreak on the other.

She would have been perturbed, for instance, in 1898, when she was still young in the carrying-a-torch business, to have seen the troops pointing out to sea with young men bound for war in Cuba. These young men were going to fight for Her—for Liberty. All wars are fought for someone's Liberty, even if it is only the liberty to be ruled by dictation.

Her nervous system would have been jolted in 1907 when the Panic struck, and when men's freedom to do as they pleased with money and crops and real estate caused much suffering and uncertainty. Her greatest jolt, if she had a brain and a heart, would have come in 1917. Through it all she held the Light high, and through it all she was Liberty Enlightening the World. There is one great trouble with Light. It is no good when it shines for the blind.

The troops shipped out to sea. The boys, and the heart of adventurers, waved back to Her. "Goodbye, Old Girl," they shouted, at least within their souls. "We're going to carry the Light over There. We'll tell you about it when we come back."

Many of them never came back and never will come back. Others did, but there wasn't much they could tell the Lady of Bedloe's Island. The other day, in Chicago, some of them in convention assembled told America: "Stay out of that war in Europe. We were there. We were soldiers; and because we know War, we say 'Stay Out.'"

The Lady of Bedloe's Island through it all stands with fixed expression staring out to sea—staring across waters which divide us from the "D" war—Democracy vs. Dictatorship. She has seen the troops go and return. Always the departures are gay and the homecomings, if she had a brain she would sense the unnecessary tragedy of it. Lucky Lady, not to have a brain.

There is nowhere in the world a statue that inspires so much sentiment as does Liberty Enlightening the World. During her early years she held the torch high for Europe's refugees—the immigrants who helped so much to build America so strong. But immigration became a problem. America was getting to be too popular. Quota laws were passed. Millions caught Liberty's gleam far over there, but only a few were privileged to use it as their guiding star. It was the Lady's fault. It had something to do with population saturation point and a fear that too many immigrants would by their very numbers lower the American standard of living.

There was an odd circumstance in connection with the unveiling of the Lady of Bedloe's Island 43 years ago today. France had presented the statue to the United States but had made no provision for a pedestal. The New York "World" launched a drive for funds for a pedestal, and it was the "World" which is entitled to much of the credit for giving the Lady something upon which to stand.

At the unveiling ceremonies the principal speaker was Senator Ewart. The Senator had prepared what no doubt was an oratorical masterpiece in keeping with the solemn grandeur of the occasion. The speech, however, was never voiced. Through some misunderstanding the veiling flag was dropped just as the Senator began to speak. The Senator was left with his manuscript, and never got a chance to speak his piece.

Senator Ewart is no more. The old "World," too, is gone. The pedestal still stands, and the Lady. For 43 years she has held the torch high. For 43 years she has stared imperturbably into the East—into the rising sun, out over the sea to the Old Country from which she herself was an immigrant and where no generation seems able to live without toasting Her at least once at a banquet of death—a banquet whose table is all Europe.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO
Saturday, Oct. 31, 1914

Thousands of Germans were reported trapped when the French opened sluices of the Yser canal.

The office of the Combined Locks Paper company was removed from the corner of College avenue and Madison street to the mill that day. Police Chief Garvey had conferred with Lawrence college students and it was believed Halloween pranks on the campus would be less serious than in previous years. The Appleton Evening Crescent warned against soaping of windows, adding "If arrests are made, do not ask to have names held out of print."

30 YEARS AGO
Saturday, Oct. 26, 1909

A moderate, orderly decline in prices characterized trading on the New York Stock exchange that day. Calm had returned to the market at the end of the week's fever ever experienced but there was no disposition toward any resumption of competitive bidding.

Articles of incorporation for the Fox River Veneer and Basket company which was to be located at Kaukauna were filed that day with A. G. Koch, register of deeds. The articles were signed by C. E. Raught, W. C. Sullivan and Joseph LeFevre.

Ten students were listed on the "A" honor roll at the Appleton Senior High school at the end of the first six weeks, according to H. H. Hebl, principal. They were Ellen Balliet, Dorothy Cohen, Melma Nohr, Vernon Beckman, Harold Hebl, Alice Mueller, Bertha Reffke, Charles Herzog, Delia VandenBosch and Jacob Shilcrat.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

WHEN LAURA PUTS UP JAM

When Laura puts up jam it is
A pretty autumn ride
Filled with the household harmonies
That make our small world bright.

Her kitchen curtains are as crisp
As Laura's cotton dress.
Her hair, tied in a curly wisp,
Adds to her loveliness.

She struggled with the recipe
And hums a merry tune.
It is such happiness to be
A bride of early June!

Her blue and yellow jars are full
Of sugar and of spice.
The morning sun is wonderful.
The jam will turn out nice.

For only good luck follows her!
"How glad," she thinks, "I am,
Because I love some one, to stir
Affection into jam!"

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington — In an upstairs room in the quarters of the almost-forgotten tariff commission there is being held the preliminary test that will show how far the U. S. will go in opening its markets to South America.

The immediate question: What concessions will the U. S. give Argentina in their projected reciprocal trade pact?

This country already has a reciprocal trade agreement with Brazil. While that is important, it doesn't test our "good neighbor" policy as does the proposed pact.

Brazil produces a number of items (such as coffee) which we vitally need, and in turn can absorb our manufactured products without stint.

Argentina, on the other hand, is like the United States in many respects and is becoming more so yearly. She has an enormous "midwest" where cattle, corn, dairy products, poultry and wheat are produced. Of all the South American countries, Argentina is most advanced in manufacturing. Argentina can use a host of American manufactured articles, however. But to pay for them she must ship to the United States the things we have most of already: Cattle, corn, turkeys, hides.

Argentina is the keystone country in South America. Farthest from the United States geographically, she also is farthest in sentiment. She always has leaned toward Europe, which furnished a market for her wealth of raw products and was eager to supply manufactures in return.

A solid wall of opposition arose at once to making any concessions to Argentina at all. The tariff commission hearings gave a misleading impression, however, because rarely does anyone but an opponent of concessions testify. Of several score witnesses heard in the opening days of the hearing only one, a shoe manufacturing concern, asked to have tariff barriers lowered. He wanted more South American hides to come in.

The first days found a steady stream of senators and congressmen, each representing some sectional interest. Senator Connally was an example. He pointed out that Texas produces cattle, hides, turkeys and a host of other products which would be hit by any rush of South American goods over lower tariff walls.

"We feel kindly toward Argentina," he said, "but we do not feel so kindly that we will be willing to sacrifice our own farmers to help the cowboys of the pampas." He added:

"I voted for the trade agreements law when it was passed, but I have not been happy ever since about the vote."

Same Old Story

Altogether 15 senators and two score or more House members told similar stories. Senator Byrd of Virginia said he was a supporter of reciprocal trade, but added a caution that if it should result in bringing in agricultural products at a level below that at which American producers can compete, "it means repeal of the reciprocal trade agreements act, which I believe would be a great misfortune." He wanted Virginia turkey growers protected. The opposition was mostly agricultural. There seems little doubt that any concessions made will have to be in lowered tariffs on farm products. And the money Argentina gets from selling such items here will be spent—mostly—for manufactured goods.

The principle behind the act is that such a trade will turn benefit to the farmer because employment in manufacturing will be increased and a wider market for agricultural products will be opened. But it is hard to sell that sort of "remote control trade" to U. S. farmers.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

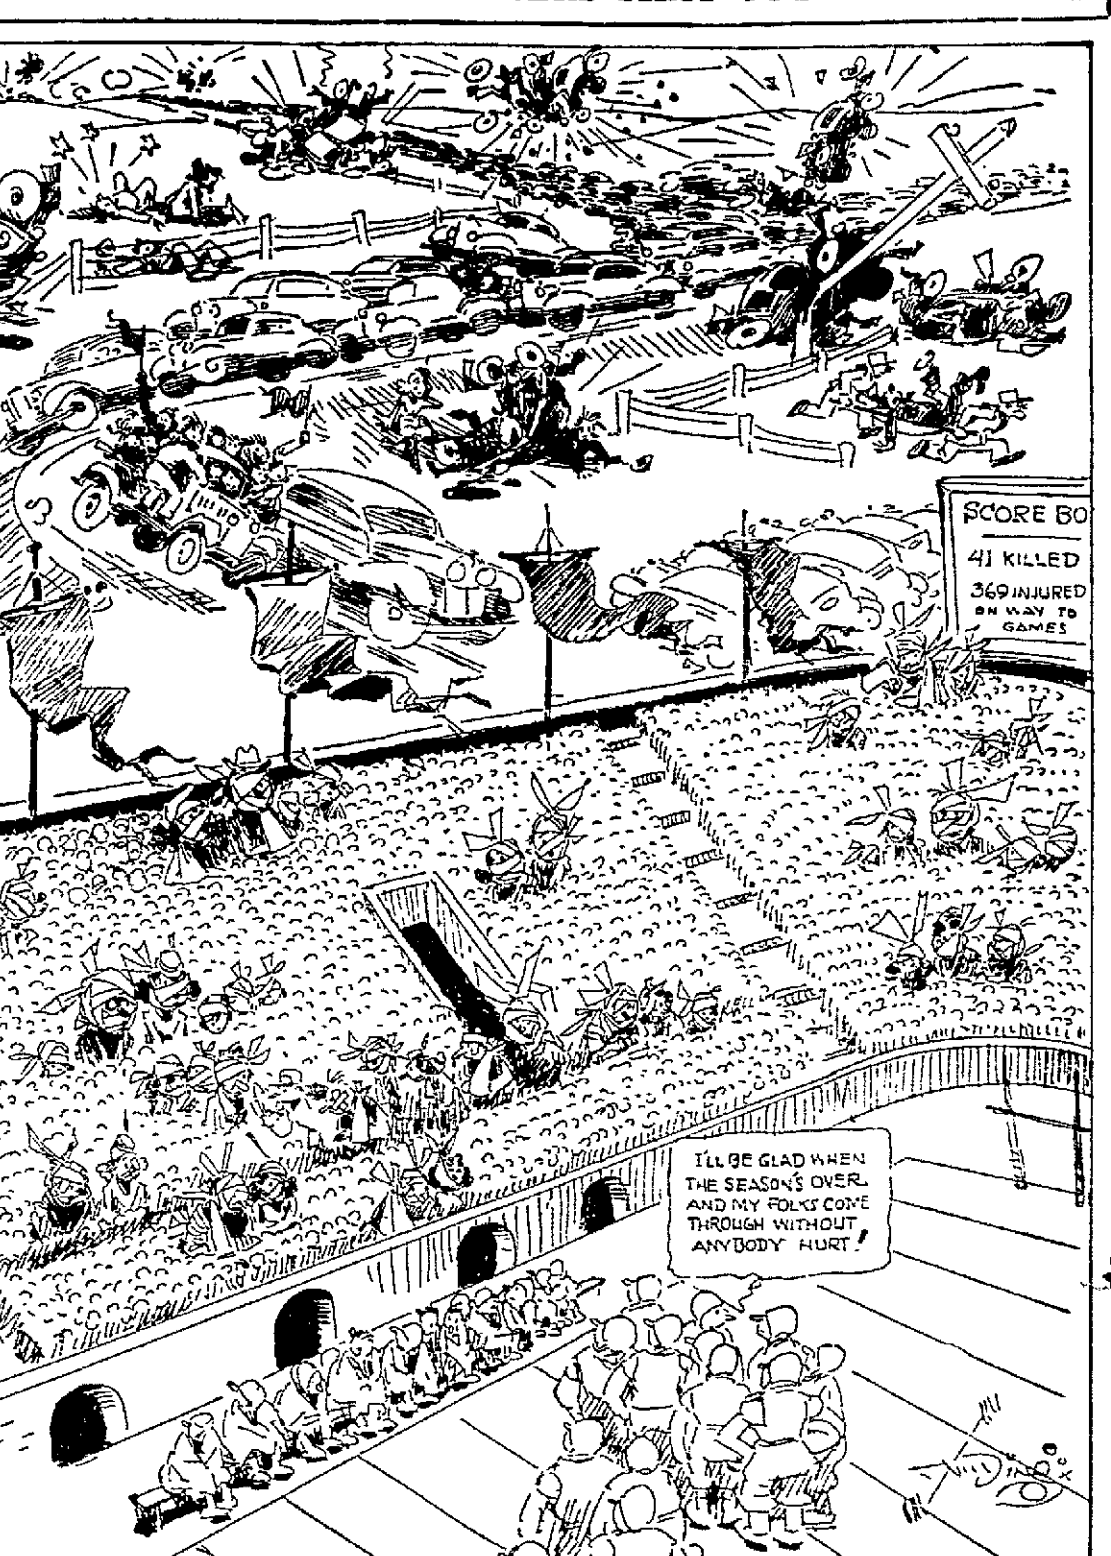

Why all this indignation and howling because the Dies committee make public the names of 563 government workers who were on the membership lists of a league which has been linked with the communist international in this land of the free and the home of the gullible? All the people on the list are old enough to know what's going on, and the fact that Uncle Sam is giving them their living ought to make 'em a little more careful than other folks before joining up with strange propaganda units.

If they belong to the great army of simple Americans who will join 'most anything without finding out whether it is a blow-up-America outfit, a union of tropical fish raisers or a league for the suppression of funny hats, they can explain everything. If they know all about the Stalin outfit and were prominent and active in it over any long period, what's wrong with showing 'em up?

This is a critical period in the life of America, ain't it? Or is it just a minor matter involving the fine points of etiquette prescribed for tennis, apple-bobbing and Chinese checkers?

There doesn't seem to be half as much resentment when somebody publishes a list of Americans who belong to a save the constitution society. And there's no great tearing-shedding when the newspapers are asked to publish long lists of Americans for no other reason than to make their salaries and incomes public.

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — Members of the state highway commission and the state purchasing director, testifying under oath in the research bureau's investigation of the commission, have made a number of extremely significant statements.

They have stated it as an opinion grown out of experience that a public agency is generally at a disadvantage in purchasing when formal bids are taken, because private buyers can usually drive better bargains than are offered the state.

For example, the highway commission members testified that when they decided to purchase cement for state highway construction last year, they knew even before the bids were drafted that the proposals would be uniform, all companies offering to sell at the same price, and that the awards would be made not on a competitive basis, but according to the personal wishes of the commission.

It may be worth watching that such testimony will figure in the investigation which the attorney general of the state is now conducting into the business practices of the cement companies.

A factor which is frequently overlooked in discussions of the possible special session of the legislature is that the administration which frequently had great difficulty in getting its wishes in the regular session will have command of fewer votes if the extraordinary meeting is called.

The senate has lost Senator Morvin Duet, probably the most regular of the regulars, who is now insurance commissioner. The assembly has lost its majority leader, R. W. Pearson, who is now a public service commissioner. In the latter case, the loss of Peterson's leadership is even more important than the loss of his vote.

Although administration spokesmen readily enough admit that Director Frank Klode of the new welfare department isn't as familiar with the newest books on social and welfare problems as some sources are demanding, they point proudly to his accomplishments in business management of one of the biggest departments of the state government.

For years the partly finished industrial school for girls at Oregon staid idle and useless, deteriorating because no governor or legislature ever felt willing to spare the $600,000 which it was reckoned would be needed to finish the job.

This year Klode volunteered to put the buildings into usable shape for $250,000, and it appears that he will do so. One of the secrets of the achievement is that he is using institutional labor on the project.

Assemblyman Maurice Fitzsimons of Fond du Lac, celebrated for his crusade against the employment of married women whose husbands are gainfully employed, didn't hesitate long this week in grabbing another opportunity to get publicity for his pet idea.

When Gov. Heil was represented again as planning to fire 2,000 state employees, Fitzsimons hurried over to the telegraph office to bid the governor to fire the married women first.

The feeling is growing in the capitol that Governor Heil may take the suggestion, and instruct department

Personal Health Talks

ICHTHYOSIS

Ichthyosis is more familiar as fishskin disease or alligator hide. Another name for it is xeroderma or xerosis, Greek for dry skin. Many persons have a slight roughening and slight scaliness of certain areas, of the skin, particularly the outer surface of the calves and the back of the elbows—the skin appears rough, scaly or "dirty." This is a mild form of ichthyosis or xeroderma. In more marked cases the skin over the elbows, knees, thighs and arms is dry, rough and scaly enough to suggest the appearance of fish skin or alligator hide.

Usually the hair of one with ichthyosis is dry and lusterless and the nails are opaque, friable, slow-growing.

In not a few cases ichthyosis or xeroderma may depend upon prolonged moderate deficiency in vitamin A intake. Only way to determine whether this applies in a given case is by trying the therapeutic test—that is, taking an optimal daily ration of natural vitamin A (not mere carotene) to supplement the diet for a few weeks and see. This can do no harm in any case. A fair daily ration for the purpose would be four capsules of natural vitamin A daily—each capsule containing 25,000 units.

The day's ration being taken all with breakfast or divided into two or four doses thru the day if preferred. If the skin condition shows marked improvement in the course of a few weeks, then see to it that the diet shall include liberal amounts and varieties of the foods rich in vitamin A thereafter.

Probably more frequent than ichthyosis in persons who get insufficient vitamin A is a skin condition characterized by hard dry red papules on the outer surfaces of legs and arms, sometimes on the face as well. The papules occur at the site of the orifice of sebaceous duct and hair follicle. This skin condition may be mistaken for acne. The same therapeutic test is harmless in any case—take 100,000 units of natural vitamin A (four capsules) daily for a month or so. If definite improvement is apparent, then pay more attention in future to including in your diet foods rich in vitamin A.

Judicious use of bland hormone feeding under the direction of the personal medical adviser is most effective in some cases.

As the skin lacks sebum, natural skin oil, it should be anointed with a minimum amount of bland oil once or twice daily, especially after washing. Freshly made cold cream—the genuine ointment of rose water made after the official Pharmacopoeia formula, not ready-made concoction containing petroleum (paraffin) jelly—is good—it should be freshly made at least monthly. Olive oil is good. So is "cocoa butter." So is fresh lard or the cosmetic benzoinated lard prepared by the Pharmacopoeia formula. In "Save Your Skin" are recipes for home made Skin Oil, Cold Cream and the like.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Galvanic Sore Mouth
I am under the impression that you said two dissimilar metal fillings or dentures in the mouth may set up a miniature galvanic battery effect and cause sore mouth. If so, what is the remedy?

(C. D. F.)
Answer — The remedy is to have the inferior metal fillings or dentures replaced by gold. That is best and most economical in the long run in any case. Other conditions may be responsible for sores in the mouth of a person who has dissimilar metal fillings or dentures, such as the habitual taking of laxatives containing phenolphthalein, and a prolonged moderate deficiency of vitamins in the diet, particularly vitamin C (in fresh fruits and vegetables or their juices) and vitamin B (in wheat, wheat germ, wheat bran, yeast, fresh milk, eggs, carrots, banana, etc.).

WANTS HIM ELECTED

Editor Post-Crescent I am sorry that my friend Erwin J. Bogan has been abused so badly since his election. The article that I wrote for the "People's Forum" was not meant for an older man. It was a general subject as to the salary that was voted for by the voters of Appleton.

A number of my neighbors and friends had a discussion as to the vote on the $250 salary for the aldermen, after the decision of the court. One of the men said, Kaufman's have a typewriter let him write an article for publication in the Appleton Post-Crescent.

Yes I did ask Mr. Bogan for his support and for his friends' support. I told Mr. Bogan that I was a building contractor for 25 years; that I was the foreman at the building for the Borden's Condensery factory at Black Creek; that I was the foreman who built the Odd Fellows Hall, the Farmers' Bank and the High School at Manawa, Wisconsin. I also built 8 new homes here in the city. I asked Bogan for his support if he thought that I would be a competent building inspector. At that time he was friendly towards me. I am sorry that he now feels differently.

As to the president of the council, I would like to have seen him elected as he is a good man for the job.

Defer Action on Storm Sewer Job, Request of Mayor

Goodland Warns Board He Will Oppose Any Raise in Taxes

The $218,308 storm sewer project, proposed by Alfred Wickesberg, city engineer, come to its first stumbling block at a board of public works meeting Friday when Mayor John Goodland, Jr., warned the board he would not stand for a raise in the taxes to finance the job.

Bids on concrete sewer pipe for the project were referred to the city engineer for tabulation and will be submitted to the city council for consideration Wednesday night.

The mayor warned the board to go slow and asked that the matter be deferred until budget time, sometime in November, "to see if we'll have enough money for the job."

The mayor said the project could be done over a period of three years as well as two as proposed. The engineer has set up the project to be completed in two years at a cost of about $30,000 per year to the city. The rest of the money would come from WPA.

The engineer said WPA will be ready to start Nov. 9 and he would like to have the project approved before that time.

Bids on Pipe
The Keopke Construction company was the low bidder on concrete sewer pipe the bid totaling $18,114. A separation shows: 1,510 feet of 24-inch pipe, $2,808.60; 660 feet of 27-inch pipe, $1,386; 1,275 feet of 39-inch pipe, $5,176.50; and 1,510 feet of 48-inch pipe, $8,742.90. Bids also were offered by the Badger Concrete company, Oshkosh, and the Wisconsin Concrete Pipe and Culvert company, Sheboygan.

Bob Ulrich, Neenah, offered the low bid on a power shovel for digging sewers, $3.50 per hour including the machine and expenses. The low bid on a trenching machine was offered by Sigmund Wogkolski, Milwaukee, who bid $4.90 an hour.

Thousands See Enthusiastic Students in Avenue Parade

BY JOHN HAMMER

Thousands lined College avenue this morning to watch enthusiastic high school students parade their floats with slogans that threatened disaster to the East Green Bay's invasion of Appleton's homecoming camp.

The parade is considered one of the best ever staged by the high school and if crowds and enthusiasm mean anything, it probably was. It was the final attempt to inject pep into the grid squad playing the Bay this afternoon at Whiting field.

Friday, a pep session was held at the high school, and a bonfire program and snake dance despite the rain last night kept the police busy escorting students and the townspeople conscious of the fact there was a homecoming today.

The best float in the parade, the judges decided, was the contribution of the Delta Hi-Y club. It was a battleship in glittering colors slowly sinking beneath the water. The legend was: "Look what our subs did; watch what our varsity will do."

Curtain Call Second
Curtain call was second with a float carrying the caption: "A man and his dream." On the float was a sleeping griddler surrounded by the school's most pretty girls.

Third in the judges' opinions was the Badger Hi-Y float showing an Appleton football player hanging Green Bay's jerseys on a clothes line.

A butcher roasting East on a gridle was the contribution of the Century Hi-Y club while the Girl Reserves on their float were "be-utiful" Green Bay. The Nature club float carried a group of gridders teasing several terrors, and all of them making a heap of noise. The legend was "Terrierize East."

The Girls Athletic association float bragged "even Lux can't stop our runs." The Pinnacle Triangle float showed a coffin which urged "bury east." A group of boys pulling a float with the apparent idea: "We're pulling for Appleton," and two football players one with a chain around his neck was the contribution of the Trojan Hi-Y club. Stage Hi-Y on its float showing a cow and a milk pail bragged "we'll beat east."

A car camouflaged as an army tank with the legend, "The French Smashed the west wall; We'll smash the east," was offered by the German club. The Roth Hi-Y had phonograph records with the caption: "We'll break East's record."

The police escort, cheerleaders and the High school band headed the procession while the American Legion Drum and Bugle corps, in their fatigues uniforms, brought up the rear.

Pep Session
The first shot of school spirit was injected into the student body Friday afternoon at a pep session during which a pep band a combination of brass drum and good intentions opened with "Tiger Rag." Amy O'Neil and William Mullen, flag raisers, carried the flag to the stage. Arman Scheutle called the coaches, football team and the Talmans sports editor to the platform and Myron Seims, coach, invoked the assistance of the student body in a prayer for rain, but it apparently didn't do much good for today turned up bright and clear.

After the players were introduced, John Mack, an assistant coach, gave a pep talk. Dick Pardee, a sophomore cheerleader, offered a couple of swing tunes on the piano to pep up the students and Bill Burton, junior end and dressing room baritone, led the school in the alma mater.

Rain interferes

Rain discolored the chain of events scheduled for last night and this morning.

cold drizzle prevented talks by Mayor John Goodland, Jr., Wesley Morris, a June graduate, and Ray Brash, captain of today's game with East.

Though the rain was an unwelcome contribution, it didn't completely dampen the spirit of the students and a huge bonfire was kindled in the traditional style. A dummy dressed as East Green Bay and inclosed in a casket was fed to the fire amid the expressive outbursts of the gathering.

After the bonfire burned low and gave no indications of being replenished, some 600 to 700 students snake-danced down Badger avenue way to get into the theater would be to pay the freight.

The crowd milled around on College avenue for a couple of hours and then called it quits to get some sleep for today's football battle.

No Free Ride
An attempted entrance into Appleton theaters was foiled in the making by police who anticipated the move and were there waiting when the attempt was made. Enthusiasm was running high but the police made it plain that the only way to get into the theater would be to pay the freight.

The crowd milled around on College avenue for a couple of hours and then called it quits to get some sleep for today's football battle.

Booster Session At Theater Will Start Roll Call

John Hantschel Will Talk On Experiences With Red Cross

A booster meeting for the opening day of the annual American Red Cross roll call was outlined at a meeting of the board of directors Friday at the Red Cross office.

John E. Hantschel, county clerk and a veteran of the last war, will talk at 11:15 the morning of Nov. 11 at the Rio theater to roll call workers and anyone else interested. Hantschel will tell of his experiences with the Red Cross in France in 1918.

Mrs. Mabel O. Shannon, executive secretary, said the program will be combined with the American Legion's observance of Armistice day at 11 o'clock. Two motion pictures showing the work of the Red Cross will be shown in the theater.

The roll call campaign will start after the booster meeting and will continue to Nov. 30. The quota this year has been raised from 2,200 to 3,200 because of the increased need for the services of Red Cross.

Students Will Help
It was announced at the board meeting that the home economics department at Appleton High school, headed by Miss Catherine Spence, will fill the quota for dresses to be sent to foreign countries for Polish refugees. The classes will complete about 50 dresses before the Christmas vacation.

The quota for knitted sweaters and socks for men, women and children will be filled by purchase. It was originally planned to have the garments knitted by individuals in the city but the high cost of yarns made this prohibitive.

Mrs. Paul Hackbert was named chairman of the production committee and will be in charge of the

Doubt Success of Badger Move To Keep Congress in Session

BY RUBY A. BLACK

Washington — Wisconsin Republicans and Progressives—the entire delegation in the house of representatives—will vote to keep congress continuously in session between the end of the neutrality right and the opening of the regular session on Jan. 3.

It is not expected that they will win, however. Even if they should win a majority in the house, with the aid of Democratic liberals who want economic and health legislation taken up, and with the aid of some Democratic conservatives who might merely want to "vote against the president," they apparently have no chance of winning in the senate.

If the house should vote to stay in session, and the senate should vote to adjourn, the president could then exercise his constitutional right to set the adjournment date. While this right is clearly set forth in the constitution, it has never been exercised, according to Congressman Joseph W. Martin, Massachusetts Republican who is minority leader of the house and the author of the move for continuous session.

"President on Spot"
Indeed, behind the apparently unanimous Republican move in the house may be a mischievous desire to "put the president on the spot" in this way, as there might be a considerable public protest if he should "prorogue" congress. Certainly he would be accused of "dictatorship" and of not wanting "the people's representatives" to stay in Washington to "attend to the people's business."

It would be freely pointed out that no other president had ever ordered congress out of Washington. The attitude of the Wisconsin congressmen is identical with that of Martin—that the president said there is an emergency, that if the country is in danger, congress should be here to meet every urgent problem, that congress should now take up new national defense problems instead of waiting until January, etc.

When the session opened, Wisconsin congressmen were divided

On whether congress should remain in continuous session.

Congressmen Charles Hawks, Jr., Schafer, Milwaukee Republican, Merlin Hull, Black River Falls Progressive, definitely advocated that congress remain in session, and take up legislation other than the neutrality bill.

Congressmen Bernard J. Gehrmann, Mellen Progressive, Stephen Bolles, Janesville Republican, and Frank B. Keefe, Oshkosh Republican, advocated confining the business of this session to neutrality, while Joshua L. Johns, Algoma Republican, Lewis D. Thill, Milwaukee Republican, and Reid F. Murray, Waupaca Republican, were undecided at that time, although Johns and Thill inclined to believe that congress should adjourn after finishing the neutrality bill.

Of course, a lot of the congressmen who will vote to stay in session will be very happy, indeed, if they lose, because they'd like to go home for Armistice day speeches, for Thanksgiving, and for Christmas.

It Is Said..

That a real political battle is raging at the Appleton High school where seniors have been attempting to elect a president for the last two weeks. The winning candidate must have a majority, a practically non-existent state of affairs in his election. Several of the candidates have had plurality victories but the battle continues.

That the Appleton Civic association, which has been putting the heat on the board of education to open the schools for recreation and meetings, used Morgan school auditorium Wednesday night for a meeting.

Dog owners who took their pets with them this morning to witness the Appleton High school homecoming parade found it was an ill advised venture, considering the makeup of one of the floats.

A float advocating that Appleton "Terrierize East" carried out its theme realistically enough with a squadron of excited, barking dogs aboard. Their excitement was transmitted to the dog on the street, who in turn nearly snapped his leash in half or, if he was loose, scurried back and forth beside the truck carrying his colleagues. There were some harried dog owners on College avenue this morning.

Jury Rules Branch Was Justified in Assaulting Tollard

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh — In a special verdict Friday afternoon, a municipal court jury ruled that Steve Branch, route 2, Menasha, was "justified" in assaulting Ben Tollard, Oshkosh, in an altercation near Oshkosh Dec. 3. Responding to another question put by the court, the jury fixed Tollard's damages, if any are awarded to him by future action of the court, at $214.75.

The action, heard by Judge S. J. Luchsing, was a civil suit for $5,000 brought by Tollard, who alleged Branch stabbed him in the face, chest and back. As a result, Tollard claimed he was confined to the hospital for five days and had been unable to resume his job as a truck driver for three months.

Branch claimed self defense maintaining he had exerted only enough force to defend himself against Tollard. Branch denied having a knife in his possession at the time of the fight.

Girls Take Places of Varsity Gridders in Novel Pep Assembly

Menasha — Menasha High school students continued their series of novel assembly programs Friday afternoon at the school auditorium with 11 girls taking the parts of the various varsity players and telling what their duties would be against New London. The first novelty pep assembly had everything mixed up with Coach N. A. Calder directing the band, H. O. Griffith, printing instructor, telling who he would start in the ball game and Leslie Anson, physical education instructor, leading the singing.

Friday afternoon Miss Marijane Jex, girls physical education instructor, donned shoulder pads and football shoes and called on her squad to outline their duties. Myrtle Roy was at quarterback in place of William Schmitzer. Jane Finch was at fullback instead of William Robinson and Richard Sheleski and Roland O'Brien, halfbacks, found their places occupied by Lucille Gatz and Lois Leopold.

Rosemary Griffith found herself the center of attraction in place of Kenneth Wolf, varsity center. The ends were Arlene Parker and Elaine Handler, the tackles were Betty Barwick and Joyce Draepfel and the guards were Patty Schommer and Dorothy Flowright.

On her way out Coach Marijane Jex stumbled over Carol Mae Peterson, who announced that she represented the host of substitutes who sit on the bench and provide color by running up and down the sidelines. The program ended with the wail of the subs to the varsity, "Ain't ya coming out? Ain't ya coming out tonight? I want to play!"

Unusual Book Is Included in New Menasha Releases

"Ten Years Under the Earth" Tells of Cave Exploration

Menasha — Among the dozen new books being released for circulation at Elisha D. Smith library at 7 o'clock tonight is at least one book which is quite different from any book that has been published before. It is Norbert Casteret's "Ten Years Under the Earth," an account of discoveries in caves and caverns.

An example of the experiences recounted is one occasion when the author, by swimming with great difficulty upstream through a totally submerged tunnel, was rewarded by the discovery of the oldest sculpture known to man—the cave statuary in the cavern of Montespan in the Pyrenees.

To meet an interest in chemical growth of plants, two specialists from the Rutgers university Department of Agriculture have written a description of methods used and the limitations and advantages of each in the culture of plants in "Artificial Mediums." The authors are Dr. C. H. Connors and Dr. V. A. Tiedje.

A comprehensive survey of the social problems of our day, their historical background and the possibility of their alleviation is to be found in "Society in Transition" by Harry Elmer Barnes.

The autobiography of A. A. Milne completes the list of non-fiction books. Mr. Milne is widely known as an essayist, dramatist, novelist and for his book, "Peace with Honor," the English speaking world knows his best for four famous children's books, "Winnie-the-Pooh," "When We Were Very Young," and "Now We Are Six."

Another novel by August Derleth, "Restless is the River," can be appreciated by all Wisconsin people and those who read his earlier novels of Wisconsin. Sac Prairie again is used as the setting for the story of Augustin, Count Brogman, who like many another liberal thinker was forced to flee from Hungary in the late 1840's.

Other fiction books include "Sister of the Angels" by Elizabeth Goudge, "Another Cynthia" by Doris Leslie, "Lady with Jade" by Margaret Mackay, "Christmas Holiday" by W. Somerset Maugham, "Strife Before Dawn," by Mary Schumann, "If We Only Had Money" by Lee Shippey and "The Sea Tower" by Hugh Walpole.

Western stories to be released tonight are "Mad O'Hara" by Jackson Gregory and "Singing River" by W. C. Tuttle. Mystery fans will have two volumes. They are "Double for Death" by Rex Stout and "The Blind Side" by Patricia Wentworth.

The 1939 figure is far ahead of 1938 when total pumpage for the quarter was only 36,144,600. The clerk pointed out that 1938 was an unusually wet year.

Committees Favor 2-Way Radio Plan For Four Counties

Proposal Will be Submitted to Supervisors at November Meetings

(Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau) Oshkosh—The chairman of the sheriff's and coroner's committees of the Outagamie, Waupaca, Fond du Lac and Winnebago county boards, meeting at the Winnebago county courthouse here Friday afternoon, indicated that they would recommend the installation of a 2-way police radio for the four counties, when the respective boards hold their November sessions.

Two separate police radio budgets were presented to the group by the Winnebago county committee. The first one sets the increased operating cost of the 2-way system at $2,400 over that of the present set-up. The additional maintenance would be divided as follows: Outagamie, $672; Fond du Lac, $624; Waupaca, $288; and Winnebago, $816.

The additional operating expense is incurred by the addition of a second-class radio operator to be located at the master station, Oshkosh. It includes his salary and the cost of traveling to each of the county stations for servicing every two weeks. He would supervise the entire setup for the four counties.

Second Budget

The second budget which was submitted to the group was the estimate for maintenance of the present system. It is set at $7,640, a figure $260 less than the 1939 budget figure, $7,900. It will become applicable if the new system is not adopted.

In addition to the increased maintenance costs of the 2-way budget, the change would cost each of the counties in excess of $2,000 for new construction.

J. P. Prebensen, Neenah, chairman of the Winnebago county committee said his group would recommend the adoption of the 2-way system. H. W. Gloeckle, Waupaca county, said his committee was "100 per cent for the 2-way system" and indicated that they would ask the county board to support the change.

Although J. E. Jones, Fond du Lac, said he didn't feel as though he could speak for his entire committee, he was "personally in favor of the 2-way system." "I don't know just what my committee will decide at our next meeting," Jones said, "but I think we'll go along in favor of the change."

Oshkosh Interested—Supervisor A. J. Kornder, Oshkosh, said the city of Oshkosh had shown a decided interest in book-keeping up with the dual system. "If the county goes 2-way, I think the city will go 2-way," Kornder said.

H. W. Gloeckle, Waupaca, suggested that William Seemuth, engineer who surveyed the project, and Frank Cartwright, radio operator of state WAKE, appear before the four boards at their November sessions "to explain the setup as they explained it here, Monday."

A complete report of the activities of the present 4-county radio for the first nine months of 1939 will be mailed to each supervisor in the four counties in time for their November sessions. The report lists the number of calls handled, the telephone expenses, and cities outstanding examples of efficiency.

The Palace Hotel, San Francisco—Dear Staff: There's nothing more amusing than a movie star away from Hollywood. I've been watching some of the film folk who came up here for the U. C. - U. S. C. football game, and it's been a great fun.

All of them are divided between two fires: They're worried sick that the autograph hounds will get them—and they're worried sick that the autograph hounds won't get them.

As the train neared San Francisco, they commenced to complain about mobbing fans. There was grinning from all sides, and stars by the dozen were audibly wishing there were no such things as autograph hunters.

But I notice no one sneaked off the platform of the last car, which would have been simple. Furthermore, I caught more than one star giving a shy glance at the crowd around his neighbor—to see, of course, if the other actor had attracted a larger group.

At that, it's tough on a movie star to go away from home. He can't be himself because he's under close scrutiny every minute. If he doesn't tip the Pullman porter twice what the ordinary rich man tips, he's a piker. If he would like to let his morning shave go until he reaches his hotel, he dare not for there may be a cameraman at the station. He can't afford to be called slovenly.

Your Excellency: If any of our stellar companions wait too long about "loss of personal privacy," tell them how Janet Gaynor, seven years ago, spent three weeks in a Wisconsin summer resort under the name of "Smith." Remember? Beyond that simple incognito, she made no effort at concealment, yet remained absolutely unrecognized. If Janet, then, the screen's most popular star, could do that, so can anyone else—if he WANTS to.

Morton Downey, Coconut-Growing, is talking contract with Walter Wanger and may star in a film musical. The Lew Landers (he's the RKO director) are asunder and his wife of sixteen years standing, Marlene Dietrich is on the injured list—intending to kick Charles Winninger's rear for a scene, her ankle hit the six-gun at his hip. . . . Ida Lupino and Louis Hayward are reading play scripts.

Congress Leaders See Quick House Neutrality Vote

serve its neutrality and that in imposing restrictions on its shipping and its citizens it was surrendering none of its rights under international law.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), an opponent of embargo repeal, rose from his seat and began thumping papers on his desk.

"Mr. President," he declared finally, "I can not agree to a preamble which is a stump political speech in behalf of this bill."

"The bill should stand or fall on its own merits. If you don't want to inject politics into this issue why should it be necessary to inject—at the last minute—a political speech?"

Connally pulled his spectacles far down on his nose, raised his arms above him and replied:

"The senator from Montana says this is a stump speech. He ought to know—he's just made one."

The galleries, tittered, and Connally, seated directly behind Wheeler, leaned over and asked whether the Montanan agreed that this country desired to maintain its neutrality.

"I think we should maintain our neutrality," Wheeler replied. "but I don't think we can maintain it through repeal of the arms embargo."

"The same old stuff," Connally snapped, his arms waving. "When you're licked you can't take it."

Wheeler and Senator Clark (D-Mo.) threatened to talk indefinitely to prevent approval of the preamble. Connally withdrew it finally but pointed out that the joint senate-house conference committee could write any sort of a preamble it chose.

Senator Barkley (D-Ky.) predicted to the senate that the measure would be passed by the house and returned to the senate by Thursday. Another senate vote of approval then would send it to the White House for Mr. Roosevelt's assured signature.

Best Amendments—In yesterday's 10-hour session, the senate leadership beat down one opposition amendment after another. Senator LaFollette (P-Wis.) provoked the most debate with a proposal that the people be allowed to vote in an "advisory election" before congress could declare an overseas war. His proposition lost by a vote of 73 to 17.

As passed by the senate, the bill would require that title to most cargoes destined for belligerent nations be transferred to non-Americans before they left these shores.

American ships could not carry arms to belligerents anywhere and could not carry any goods to France, England, Germany and in the main—to the east coast of Canada. However, they could carry ordinary commercial cargoes to belligerent ports far away from the European war zone.

The president would be empowered to mises. Too much arm-waving at either end of the party will tear the whole fragile structure apart at the seams.

The delicate situation existing both in and out of the party had something to do with the prompt emphasis of the White House turn-down. The whole story does not lie in the arms embargo situation, however.

Some of Mr. Roosevelt's closest friends are convinced he has not made up his mind whether to run again. These feel that whether he does depends upon two things. First, perhaps, is the strength that underlies any outside third term demand as convention time approaches. Second is the situation inside the party next spring.

Doesn't Want to Run?

Mr. Roosevelt is said to have told at least two persons that he had no intention of running. Friends say he and Mrs. Roosevelt have made many plans they want to carry out after they leave the White House. These friends now are coupling these facts to the fact given the Wallace proposal and are emerging with the conclusion that he will not ered to draw lines on the world map at any time he chose and designate them "combat areas" in which American vessels and travelers could not go.

Belligerent governments would have to pay cash for everything they purchased here, but citizens of belligerent nations could buy commercial goods on credit.

try to get the nomination; that if he runs for a third term the nomination must come to him in the nature of a peremptory draft from the next Democratic convention.

But they attach one condition to this conclusion. Mr. Roosevelt is deeply interested in the program of social reforms he has undertaken. If, as the next convention approached, it seemed the nomination was destined to go to a man whom he regarded as out of step with that program, he might be projected actively into the campaign. No one expects him to sit idly by while the convention picks a man he could not support.

The police and fire commission last night tentatively approved a revised set of rules and regulations for the police department. 'What a Life' Continues Its Broadway Success on the Road

"What a Life," which comes to the Rio theater next Wednesday night as the first road show in Appleton in close to ten years, has met with huge success since it left New York to go on the road. In Boston it played to capacity houses for a long run; Newark, Detroit and Omaha crowds were turned away; in a number of cities still to be played the theaters are complete sell-outs.

The cast for the local production, headed by Jackie Coogan and Josephine Dunn, is exactly the same as is playing in the large cities. In fact, Appleton is the smallest city on the whole tour and the company hasn't been in any city anywhere near Appleton's size since leaving Broadway, where it ran for two highly successful years.

Fifteen stagehands are required to put up the scenery, handle the lights and generally produce the play in the Rio theater.

"What a Life" is the first of four stage productions to be brought to Appleton by the Legitimate Theater corporation. If they are supported, more shows of a similar high standard will be booked. The ticket sale for "What a Life" indicates a very good crowd, thus lending hope that the experiment of presenting high class road shows in this city will prove successful.

IN STAGE SHOW JACKIE COOGAN, famous child star of silent pictures and now in talking productions on the screen who will be seen here Wednesday at the Rio theater in "What a Life," New York's biggest comedy hit, by Clifford Goldsmith. This is a stage production.

Pegler Is Treated Well and Feels Obligation of Courtesy

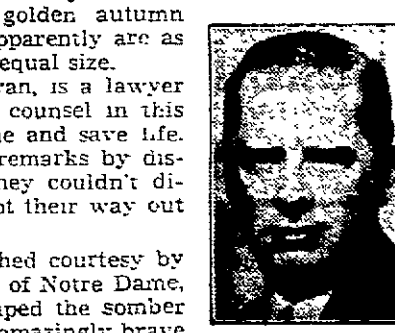

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Reno, Nev.—Inasmuch as the mayor took me for a ride in the mountains, the lieutenant governor bought me a drink, the chamber of commerce gave me a lot of booklets and a deputy warden showed me the lethal chamber at the prison and a man condemned to go about Thanks-giving, I feel an obligation of courtesy to say that the air here is bracing and the sunshine glorious on the golden autumn trees and that the moral conditions apparently are as sanitary as those of any other city of equal size.

The lieutenant governor, Mr. Sullivan, is a lawyer who deals in divorce and holds that counsel in this line sometimes prevent grievous crime and save life. In support of this proposition remarks by dis-satisfied husbands to the effect that if they couldn't divorce their husbands they would shoot their way out of wedlock.

I was received, too, with distinguished courtesy by the governor, Mr. Carvill, an alumnus of Notre Dame, class of '09, who has fortunately escaped the somber duty of deciding whether the bad but amazingly brave man in the death house might live in prison until God's own time or must die by gas in a room behind ice box doors not six feet from the cell in which he whittles away the sunny hours of his last days on earth swatting flies.

A gambling house dealer by trade, this victim of his own race met her man at a country dance, killed her normal commerce with her sister Nevada. Nevada has developed a unique practice, in part a sly and cynical racket but not altogether so. Nevada solicits the divorce business of those who must divorce, brazenly invites Californians up to evade— and substantially violate—the requirements of the marriage laws of their own state, and even more boldly tempts Californians and others to establish legal but fictitious residence within her borders to escape paying their taxes, which Mr. Roosevelt once described as the price of civilization.

Her motives Can Not Be Considered Samaritan

It is known, of course, that Nevada, under pressure of competition, dropped from six months to six weeks the period required for the establishment of a legal residence sufficient for the purposes of divorce. There is a pretense that this was done merely for her own convenience, but the insincerity of that is apparent in the fact that in Reno alone, a city with a fairly static population of about 20,000 of all ages, there have been 26,152 divorces in a little less than nine years. If the convenience of divorce were intended primarily for the people of Nevada a limit of one or five divorces would be convenient enough for the actual residents to not hurry by.

As a sop to her conscience and a pin to hold up her self-respect Nevada insists that, conceding everything, her laws of convenience and subterfuge are nevertheless a redress of impositions on the individual by the laws of other states. There is something to that, although Nevada's motives are not Samaritan.

Divorces Are Provided To Fit The Pocketbook

Ill-matched persons may divorce easily, in privacy and with almost no expense, if they can afford. They can pay high, the poor pay low, and a scioness from Palm Beach, bidding her time in Reno, may be served at table or manured by a sister in trouble temporarily employed at the minimum wage of $3 a day, whose own divorce signed by the same judge will be as good as one that costs $10,000 in counsel fees. The colored chauffeur of a rich divo, having played and lunch with her in six weeks with the boss, decided that he would get divorced, too, seeing that he was on the ground, and got his decree the same day.

The wisdom of California's gin-marriage law may be challenged, but the blood test, or dog bite statute, was adopted to protect innocents, particularly babies.

That Nevada, having no such social and hygienic qualms, would attract a few clodpates to be expected, but the community could be in better business than that of enticing thousands of persons whose very preference for Nevada, under the circumstances, invites suspicion. In fact, the suspicion is the subject of so much ribald wit, not only in Reno but in California, that it may presently embarrass the marriage racket to death.

Favors Larger Mesh For Commercial Nets

Port Washington, Wis. — Oliver Smith, secretary of the Conservative Commercial Fishermen's association, in a statement yesterday upheld Governor Heil for signing the new Wisconsin conservation commission orders enlarging the size of mesh of commercial fishing nets.

Smith termed the order a long sight move toward reduction of the heavy takes of immature lake fish and a conservation measure which ultimately would put lake fishing back on its feet.

He said the Wisconsin Commercial Fishermen's association had had two years' warning that the new order would go into effect and hence had time to re-equip boats. Frank Gies, president of the W.C.F.A., had said the new size chub nets would make $20,000,000 worth of Wisconsin commercial equipment obsolete.

BOOK REVIEW Emil Ludwig's Gifted Pen Portrays Life of Cleopatra

By Jean Wiley Thickens

"CLEOPATRA" by Emil Ludwig. Cleopatra, queen of Egypt was not only the greatest siren of the ancient world but also one of its most gifted and far-seeing "statesmen." Only Julius Caesar, the first of her two famous lovers, equalled this glittering, Grecian vamp in wisdom and guile. And when Caesar met his tragic death at the height of his glory, his heart-broken mate endeavored to perpetuate those brilliant policies for the benefit of Caesarion, the son whom she had born to him, and in whom she already saw the reincarnation of his famous father.

Emil Ludwig is the author of the finest biography of Napoleon ever written. He is also the biographer of the most famous river in history, the Nile. And in his first biography of a woman, he has given the world the best and most carefully compiled record of the life of Queen Cleopatra who ruled for years over the richest, the most picturesque and the most brilliant kingdom in all history.

In her ethics and morality, Cleopatra was Oriental; the killing of two brothers and two half-sisters who threatened her supremacy seemed of no more importance to her than the squashing of some objectionable insects who buzzed around her head. In her impatience and disdain at Caesar's invariable habit of pardoning his enemies instead of "liquidating" them, she indicates the chasm which yawned between the morals of the eastern and the western world. Reared among criminals (for the Ptolemies were all poisoners and assassins), she had no patience with gentleness or forgiveness. She frequently had wealthy citizens put to death in order that she might seize their money to carry on her constant wars, and even risked the wrath of the Egyptian gods by plundering their temples of gold and treasure.

Understood Men

The secret of Cleopatra's power was her understanding of men. Her two lovers, Caesar and Anthony were as different as night and day. Caesar was lit from within by a steadily increasing fire, while "in Anthony's heart the flames of an easily intoxicated temperament would blaze fiercely for a while and soon flicker out." Anthony was wholly the slave to the physical, while Caesar was almost austere and always dedicated to his high purpose. Anthony, the dilettant was vacillating, a drunkard, and thoroughly undependable. Cleopatra realized the vast dissimilarity between these two lovers and played her cards accordingly. She honored and revered Caesar while with Anthony she used flattery, cajolery and on occasion, force. Cleopatra was first a mighty queen, and secondly a woman. The most fascinating and complex feminine character in all history is portrayed by Emil Ludwig with broad strokes of a gifted pen. Queen Cleopatra lives again in the pages of this delightful book.

Guidance Committee Meets At Waupaca High School

Waupaca — The fifth annual campaign to help boys and girls get a glimpse of the world ahead was again launched Wednesday by Waupaca High school and neighboring schools in central Wisconsin when the counseling and guidance committee of the school—Superintendent L. M. Emans; G. W. Hendrickson, principal; William Cullen, Harold Canaan, Vincent Graham and Misses Gertrude Knudsen and Lorraine Shoemaker—met with the guidance representatives of surrounding schools. Visiting superintendents or principals were A. F. Christ, New London; Roy Bloomquist, Manawa; Arlie Koten and Howard Chase Weyauwega; W. C. Godson, Wild Rose; Melvin Bartz and D. H. Amundson, Clintonville. Other schools definitely interested in the program but unable to send representatives at this time are Amherst and Scandinavia.

The purpose of this meeting was to plan counseling the guidance days for next March 14 and 15. In 1936 Waupaca High school held its first "counseling" day and again in 1937, 1938 and 1939, each being bigger than the last until a program has been evolved that Emans and his co-workers believe is of real practical value.

Representatives of 12 or 15 colleges, universities and industries will meet with the students at the two-day conference. While meeting with outside experts is the high point of the Waupaca plan, the campaign itself goes on continually. Mr. Emans stated that the schools will attempt to help students study their own abilities and personalities and help them to make up their minds what vocation they would fit into. Intensive work along this line has already begun in the classrooms.

Conference Periods

The program will begin with a morning assembly, at which the students will hear the personnel director from some big corporation discuss "The Essential Qualities for Getting a Job." The remainder of the day is to be divided into five conference periods of 45 minutes each. During the first half hour, groups of 25 to 40 students will listen to the individual counselor give a general explanation on the vacation of their choice, followed by fifteen minutes of questions and answers. All students will be required to attend five conferences each day.

An important change in the 1940 set up is the shifting of the morning assembly on Friday to the end of the day. Mr. Emans stated that in former years, at the closing of the two-day consultation, some students were left befuddled and confused. However, with the assistance of A. H. Edgerton, professor of guidance at the University of Wisconsin, who will summarize the activities of the two days program, it is hoped that graduates will go out to college or work, with a better realization of what they are about to face. Prof. Edgerton will be available to students on Friday to give advice and answer any questions which they may ask.

As a part of the general program, representatives of local business places will give their viewpoint and advice in short talks before interested juniors and seniors.

Considerable time will be devoted to the problems of college freshmen, practice in writing letters of application, and problems which students will meet when they leave school.

Mr. Emans believes that this plan is becoming a vital part of the present day educational setup. He has talked to former pupils who profited from the enterprise and many of them have written to him suggesting ways to improve the system.

Auxiliary Group Makes Annual Banquet Plans

Brillion — Plans are being made for the annual past presidents' banquet of the American Legion auxiliary by Mrs. A. J. Neumeier, chairman, Mrs. Paul Engel, Mrs. Joseph Ecker and Mrs. William Brown. It will be held at the Marigold Gardens Nov. 20. All charter members will be the guests. The annual American Legion auxiliary rummage sale is being planned for Saturday, Nov. 4. Miss Emma Horn is the chairman.

Mrs. C. H. Wileman was hostess to several teachers of the Manitowish school system at a dinner at her home Thursday evening. The guests were Misses Anna Muth, Irma Dick, Gertrude McCauley, Alma Pederson, Genevieve Flynn, Gladys Hansen and Clara Swensen, all of Manitowish.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hinz broke her left arm at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Arno Schmidt at Reedsville Thursday morning. Mrs. Hinz tripped and fell on the concrete sidewalk.

Giles Neff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Neff, was at Manitowish area where he enlisted in the United States army. He was assigned to the coastal artillery unit and left for Ft. Sheridan, Ill., the following day. He will stay there for the first four months of his three year enlistment term.

Mrs. Gustave Hagedorn, Mrs. Peter Hansen, Miss Louise Drumm and Miss Harriet Andrews attended a Rebekah lodge district convention at Plymouth Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Spann of Chicago are guests at the home of Mrs. Bertha Haase.

6 spades Pass Pass Pass

"The four no trump bid was according to the Blackwood convention and South's five diamond bid showed one ace. Of course, it was just hard luck to go down two tricks, but you will notice that we had no play for the contract, since at the very least we would have to lose one diamond and one club.

E. F. R., Missouri

The fault in this deal must be placed 100 per cent on North's shoulders. His bidding was far too optimistic. To begin, he did not have the values for a three heart response to the opening spade bid. To quote the Gold Book, such a response requires:

(a) 3 1/2 honor tricks and a strong rebiddable suit, or

(b) 3 1/2 honor tricks with a biddable suit and such strong support for partner's suit that a double raise could have been made, or

(c) 4 1/2 or more honor tricks with a bid or bidable (even a four card) suit.

Obviously North's holding did not measure up to any of the above. His correct response to one spade was three spades. Then, if South showed a second suit, hearts, North would be justified in using a four no trump bid as a slam try. But since South, having opened with one spade, did not more than raise three hearts to four hearts, North certainly should have taken no greater action than to return to spades.

Of course, in criticizing the bidding, it must not be overlooked that the partnership found rather hard luck in the fact that their minor suits matched so badly. If North had had two diamonds and three clubs, instead of an odds-on slam, the presumption being that the heart suit would not break so horribly and that the spade suit would break no worse than 3-1. Thus North-South need not censure themselves too severely for the bad result, but can console themselves, at least partly, with the reflection that fate was not kind to them in this deal.

Good Taste Today

FIVE O'CLOCK WEDDING
Dear Mrs. Post: I am invited to a wedding in church at five o'clock and to the reception afterward. This reception is being given at a club and I understand I would like to be dancing as well as dinner. What type of dress do you advise for a woman guest, and for her husband?

Answer: A becoming daytime dress with long skirt — if you have such a dress. Otherwise, a street-length skirt will be all right in color and therefore less suggestive of street wear. Wear a hat with either dress. Your husband should wear formal day clothes: cutaway coat, dark striped trousers, white shirt etc.

Bride's Clothes
Dear Mrs. Post: Have you ever seen an ivory wedding dress (quite deep) and a white wedding veil? My dress is of ivory and now a friend insists that I take her lovely veil instead of getting one. I would like to wear hers but wondered about the difference in color of the two. Some friends tell me they have seen this combination and that it looked all right. Have you ever seen it and what do you think?

Answer: Tulle is so very transparent it ought to look lovely unless you have too much of it bunched around your head. I would like gathering as to make the whiteness of the veil very apparent next to the cream of the dress might not look very well. The only way to do is to try it on with the dress and see. As a matter of fact, a slight difference in the tint of white adds to rather than detracts from the effect.

Traveling With A Young Child
Dear Mrs. Post: When my husband and I travel with our young child, what arrangements can we make for him when stopping at a hotel? Can we have him in our room and can we leave him in the room asleep when we go out in the evening? Will a hotel look out for the child if we notify them that he is coming? How do we register the boy?

Answer: You can always have a

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

The simplicity of ANN SHERIDAN'S dinner costume dramatizes her well-groomed beauty.

The desire to preen herself, to make herself as lovely as possible, is woman's inheritance from Eve. And when that desire becomes lethargic, the woman is not well. Nature is then asking her to reconduct her body, or to take time out and so schedule her living that her mind will not be strained or dulled and her body weakened or softened. One of the quickest ways of shooting the blues is to devote a couple of hours to personal grooming, or to go shopping for new finery! How a cocky new hat will boost one's dejected spirit, and a new lipstick will inspire you to reach for another star. There is no denying it — woman's vanity should be catered to. If she is below par in health her vanity should get even greater consideration!

Of course there is a limit to the amount of time and money you spend in indulging your vanity. In fact your expenditures should most certainly be in accordance with your circumstances. It stands to reason that a busy mother of several children, with little or no household help cannot give up a day for beauty in a lush salon. Nor can she expect to take her husband's new envelope and blow it on any new clothes and engaging cosmetics. But that mother has a right to some time out for thorough personal grooming, necessary cosmetics for skin and hair, appropriate makeup and an occasional filip to her wardrobe.

But many women must learn that vanity does not begin and end with the clothes we wear or the cosmetics we can afford.

Once in a gathering of people who were blessed with greater wealth than most of us, I heard a woman say, "It certainly means everything to a woman to be as well dressed, if not better dressed, than any woman she knows!"

I gazed silently and looked at the woman. She wore expensive clothes over a body which was soft and plump from too little to do. Her skin was "pasty" looking even after a fresh facial. Her mouth drooped, and she slumped in her chair. No charm radiated, no warmth of personality. All her wealth could not buy her beauty of body and expression. They take personal effort and her easy life had robbed her of the desire to expand that effort.

Vanity can be appeased by diligent care of one's self. If you like the reflection of the mirror as you stand before it, you have satisfied vanity. Is there a brightness to your expression, is there understanding and sympathy in your eyes? Does your body feel better, does your physical activity? Is it firm and nicely proportioned? Do you carry your clothes well—even if the dress was purchased in a bargain basement? Does your skin and hair look as if you cared for them diligently? Can the woman you see be both beautiful and happy even though she may be the poorest dressed woman among many women? If so, you have lived up to your vanity and your mental and physical health need not be questioned.

My hat goes off to the numerous girls who can look "like a million dollars" on almost nothing a week. And I could send orchids to the women who keep themselves nicely groomed and as well dressed as their means will permit, simply because they feel better satisfied with themselves if they are nicely groomed and appropriately dressed. We all adore lovely things but if we cannot afford them we can at least make the best of what we have and be as attractive as possible. True feminine vanity is a satisfaction with one's self.

My leaflet "Health Rules and Exercises" will help you be beautiful. Enclose a self-addressed envelope if you request it.

Children Grow Best When Home With Father, Mother

BY ANGELO PATRI

Children grow best when they are at home with father and mother. They are not conscious of the wealth or the poverty of home so long as they feel loved and wanted. They enjoy the simplest food, and the cheapest toys; they thrive, provided that father and mother are with them at home.

The children feel safe and secure when they feel the walls of home about them. It is here they find food when they are hungry, rest when they are weary, joy when they rise in the morning and go to bed at night. It is here that all their troubles are taken care of, all their wants provided for, all their needs met. Father is their bulwark and mother is their all powerful friend.

Physical security is their first feeling about home. The pleasure of warmth and shelter and food is their first knowledge of home, and its meaning for them. But no child can be fed and sheltered and cared for without having a spiritual feeling begin to grow within him. And as time passes the need for this spiritual response to home becomes as keen as the physical demands. The children need to feel love wrapping them against the cold of the outside world, sympathy sheltering them from the harshness of its experiences, understanding to comfort them in their failures. Home is not just a roof. It is also a sanctuary.

In school, when we find that a child is falling off in his work, or play, or health, failing in any way, the first thing we do is to inquire what is going on at home. Many, many times we find that the root of the child's trouble lies back there. Maybe mother is ill, father is losing his job, baby sister is in the hospital, food is scarce, social standing is threatened. Any one of such causes is enough to lower the child's feeling of security and send him slithering down to defeat. We get to work to prevent that with all the means at our disposal, and we usually succeed. When the reserves come up the battling soldiers are cheered.

But there is one situation in which we are all helpless. When divorce breaks up a home the children are bound to suffer the loss of home and all that home stands for. A homeless child—and the child of a broken home is homeless in the full meaning of the term—is a tragic symbol. Nothing and nobody can ever restore what he has lost. The fact that it could not be helped, and sometimes that is true, does not alter his state. Boarding houses, homes with relatives, boarding schools can never make up for home.

"But what is going to happen to the children if you do this?" "O, they'll be all right. I have found a school that specializes in caring for children of divorced parents, and they are going to enter immediately."

God help us! A schoolful of homeless children. Children who have been cheated of their rightful heritage of love and protection and loving guidance of father and mother. It seems to me that one would make almost any sacrifice to prevent this. Children grow happily and healthily ONLY when they are at home. It is a terrible thing to take that from them, knowingly.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Success in life depends largely in learning how to read between the lines. Phyllis took her sweetheart at his word, when she should have looked for the motive. She awkwardly puffed and panted over a tennis court when she should have used wits instead of rackets. If she hadn't stopped her tennis soon, she'd have lost her boy friend entirely.

CASE O-184: Phyllis M., aged 20, is an attractive girl.

"But I simply am not athletic," she protested.

"I am engaged to a man who won six college letters in baseball, football and track. Besides, he is an excellent swimmer and tennis player. He is tall and handsome."

"But I am only 5 feet 2 inches tall. I never was athletic in school, for my parents wanted me to be a musician. I spent most of my spare time practicing at the piano."

"I made excellent grades in school, and now have a good position for he can carry off all the athletic honors for both of them. Isn't he the star, and can't he beat everybody? Isn't he her champion?"

Let some other girl pant and perspire all over the hot court and tire him out till he is ready to settle down on a divan or a porch swing. Then Phyllis can praise his skill and manly qualities till he purrs and thinks she is grand. This game is called coquetry.

I am not minimizing the virtue of good health and athletic ability in women, but marriage is no tennis game. Sports are actually an adolescent pastime, which is why we often like to revert to them to avoid our adult worries and tension.

But conducting a happy marriage is no kid game. It doesn't belong at the teen-age level of football and polo. Phyllis can well afford to sit on the sidelines at the tennis court as long as she can make the tennis queen take a back seat when the game shifts to coquetry. Anyway, Cupid yields to love instead of a tennis racket.

THE HOME GARDENER
by EDWIN H. PERKINS

There is plenty of work still ahead of the gardener but most of it can be done only when good winter conditions prevail or when plant material is available. Later in the season, when late lilies arrive, they can be planted in the ground prepared for them and from time to time, when conditions permit, soil can be worked so that an improved mechanical condition can be had when spring planting time arrives.

All during winter there are little open spells when snow is not on the ground. At such times reseed- ing of bare lawn spots can be done. If winter lawn reseeding is followed by a light application of peat moss over the entire lawn, much ordinary winter injury will be prevented. In the southern and middle sections of the country, sweet peas and other early spring flowering plants can be sown whenever conditions permit.

Indoors the gardener will find plenty of work to do among the house plants which suffer from attacks of mealy bugs, aphids and other insect life almost paralleling the conditions that existed in the garden. To combat these enemies the same sprays used for outdoor work will prove effective.

Later, when there is just nothing to be done outdoors in the garden time can be occupied in cleaning garden tools with emery paper to remove the rust, refilling the edges to make them sharp, and finally, repainting the handles in gay colors to fit in with the scheme decided on for next season.

As the Broadway dancing star in "Broadway Melody of 1940," Eleanor Powell wears some of the most stunning gowns in her screen career. Particularly beautiful is her evening gown of gold lame. The sunburst-pleated skirt has more than twenty-five yards of material in it. And swirls in sparkling, lustrous, she walks. The bodice, form-fitting, is made of gold bangles, with high ruffled neckline and short, little-girl sleeves. Slippers in gold with sequin bells add to the glamour of the ensemble.

Wife's Cooking Ability Major Factor in Successful Marriage

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—Although I have been engaged to the dearest girl in the world for a year, we are no nearer marriage than we were twelve months ago. It is not her fault. She wants to get married. So do I. I love her and I am faithful to her, but something is holding me back. You see, I have a room, a home, my clothing is kept cleaned and pressed. Each morning when I arise a good appetizing breakfast awaits me and each evening I sit down to a good dinner, for my mother is a grand cook. That is the picture of my home life. Will married life be as attractive with a wife who has no liking for housework, who has refused the offers of those who would teach her to cook and who takes no interest in domestic affairs? I know that marriage is always a gamble, but what about it when you think the dice are loaded?

A. R.

DOROTHY DIX

One to play with who is a square shooter and who will, at least, give him a run for his money. Of course, it may be said that you are not very romantically and passionately in love with the young woman if you can stop to listen to the warning voice of your stomach instead of being deaf to everything but the call of your heart. Men in the throes of the grand passion are popularly supposed to be far beyond all thought of physical comfort, to yearn for nothing but to possess the adored one, and to gain all the sustenance they crave from feasting their eyes upon her beauty and devouring her lips with their kisses.

However, I heartily agree with you that this would be but meager fare for a young man who is accustomed to three square meals a day at home, and I think that you show great wisdom in hesitating to put your appetite and digestion in the hands of a young woman who not only does not know how to cook, but also doesn't want to learn how to do so. For, say what you like, the foundation of every successful marriage depends more upon the wife's skill with the pots and pans than it does upon anything else. We have to satisfy the lower man before the higher man rises to the surface. No man on earth can be sentimental on an empty stomach, and nobody can picture a happy home in which the husband isn't a good provider and the wife isn't a good cook. As I have remarked more than once before in this column, the ground in the coffee pot are the grounds for many a divorce.

The first inkling that many a man gets that he has made a mistake in marriage is when his bride sets him down to a meal of over- yearning is for bicarbonate.

Such being the case, why don't you solve your problem by handing your girl an ultimatum? Tell her that as soon as she can cook you will buy the wedding ring. Otherwise nothing doing. That you are not going to be among those rash ones who sing: "I had a good home and I left it!"

Time for Girl to "Pop" Question
Dear Miss Dix—For the last two years I have been going steady with a boy I have known since childhood. I feel sure that he loves me. He told a friend that if anything should happen to me he would want to die. He never goes out with another girl and comes to see me as often as I will let him. He knows that I love him, yet he has never spoken of marriage. I am getting to the age where I am tired of running around and I want to marry and start a home and family of my own. We both have fairly good jobs. Sometimes I feel like being very And, and talking it over with him, but I just lack the courage to do it. Please give me your advice, for I surely need it. UNHAPPY SUE.

Answer: My advice is to pop the question yourself, since apparently he lacks the nerve to do it. Maybe he is one of the men who just can't screw his nerve up to the speaking point to put in words what he feels for you or maybe he is just one of the men who get into a nice, comfortable rut and are satisfied to stick there the remainder of their lives.

He loves you and enjoys being with you. He finds your house a pleasant place to spend his evenings. He enjoys taking you out around to apologize. "How you do put your finger on the truth" was his admiring comment. "I have, more than that, you rang the bell a second time. It was Iris."

"Iris?" This startled her despite what she had said the day before. "You mean to say Iris DeMuth—the girl who tricked you into buying up a lot of useless land—Iris bought it back? But why?"

"She says."
"Says? Do you mean to tell me you've talked to her?"
"For hours, last evening at the hotel."
Her knees gave way beneath her and she sank into a chair.

"Has she experienced religion, or did her partner in crime discover there really is silver in that mine after all?"
"Neither. She . . . I know it sounds screwy, Buff. It did to me. In fact, it was a long time before I could believe it! But it seems Iris was—well, it was really Latslaw who thought up the scheme and he had sort of a hold over her."
"Sort of? What sort of? Black-mail?"
"You'd have to know Iris to understand it. A softened note crept into his voice. "She's a trusting, innocent sort of a girl; not independent and self-reliant like you, Buff. She . . . well, it's almost made her ill in all these months knowing that she'd been the unconscious partner in a fraud, I mean. She . . ."

"Tim had been called to the telephone soon after dinner the night before. Buff, of course, he thought, to say she was sorry for their quarrel of the afternoon. Buff, thank heaven, never held to a resentful mood long. Her anger flared up and quick, and died almost before the beholder knew it had been kindled, save that he was apt, for days after and to his intense surprise, to discover he had received rather painful burns.

"Tim made his way to the hall where the telephone stood with a lightness of heart which astonished him. He had not known how much he had suffered beneath the girl's displeasure until he believed it was to be lifted by this call. He was dazed, when he heard a voice, which was not Buff's but was still undeniably familiar, speak his name.

"Tim!"
"Yes? Who is it, please?"
"Oh, Tim," sighed the voice sorrowfully.

It was then he knew. No one else in the world spoke with the same wistful sweetness, the same little curling upward inflection of his name.

"Iris!"
"Yes, it's Iris, my dear! Come back to undo—so far as I can!—the great wrong I did you last summer."

He stood dazed and silent, the receiver at his ear. For weeks after Iris had left Boulder, and before he himself had shown signs of collapse, he had dreamed, sleeping and waking, of just this thing: of Iris returning to say it was all a mistake; that she loved him, that there was a reason for her seeming treachery.

Now it was coming true, and instead of the wild ecstasy he had thought to feel he was mere, numb bewilderment.

"Are you there, Tim? Why don't you speak?"

Surely, he thought impersonally. Iris had the sweetest voice in the world; not low like Buff's, with little gruff and boyish notes in it, but musical, throbbing, the kind of voice which awakens emotion in the most practical of listeners.

"Will you come—at once? I'm at the hotel. And of course there are millions of things I must say to you."

He cleared his throat. "Iris, I don't think . . ."

"No, dearest, I'd rather you didn't—until after I've seen you, at any rate. All sorts of things have taken place since I . . . since we last met. For example—did you know your land—yours and George's—had been bought back?"

"Iris!" Light suddenly flooded the subject. "It was you! You were the only one who knew how much we paid for it!"

"Of course it was I, you silly boy!" Laughing and tenderness was combined in the lovely voice. "It took me some time to get enough money together, but when I did, of course I bought it. Now will you come and see me?"

"I'll come," he promised, and hung up. In ten minutes he was being shown to the private sitting room Miss DeMuth had engaged. She came toward him with outstretched arms. They were white arms, bared by flame-colored dainties which fell away as she lifted them. He recognized the gown she wore. It had been one of his favorites. Perhaps too elaborate for a January evening in a quiet hotel, nevertheless it served the purpose for which its wearer had chosen it. It bridged the months of unhappiness since he had last seen Iris. As he perhaps noticed, she also could have done made him feel that he stood again in the presence of the only girl who had the power to make his heart beat quickly, his big frame tremble with happiness. Still, he retained

Lightning Strikes Again
"I'm not especially anxious to see you—ever again," Buff told him when he telephoned.

"I don't wonder. But honestly, Buff . . ."
"Hurry up," she said, a crackle in her voice. "I've only another two minutes."

"Will you let me come some time today—any time? When I can see you alone?"

"Sorry. I'm full up for today. Tomorrow, too. In fact, my time is pretty well taken up for weeks. Bye!"

Nevertheless he was waiting for her when she returned at lunch time.

"And you have to be polite to me because I'm a guest," he said. "Webb invited me to stay. She's set a place for me."

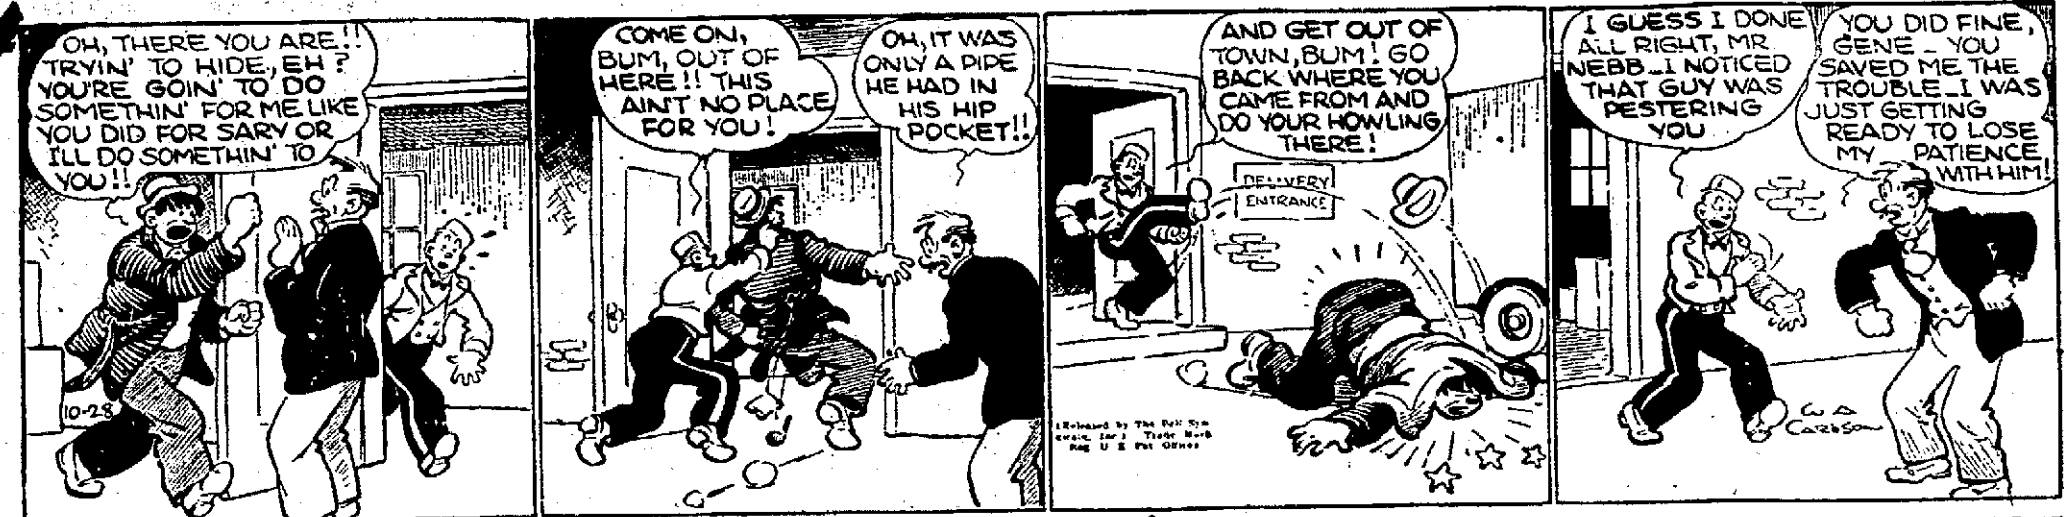

He expression of austerity did not soften.

"I suppose," she said, "you've discovered the smug philanthropist

SATURDAY TALK
In recent months, Nazi leaders have said that Germany needed more "living room," and gave this as a reason to use force to obtain land from smaller nations of Europe.

Such claims bring up the question of population. We may go over the field and see which nations have the most people per square mile.

When Hitler took power in Germany, the number of people was about 66,000,000, an average of 364 persons to the square mile.

That was far more than the average of the United States (44 to the square mile) or of Canada (three to the square mile) but it did not make Germany the most thickly settled country of Europe.

Belgium, Holland and Great Britain have far more people to the square mile than Germany. Based on latest figures, Belgium has an average of 709 persons to the square mile, almost twice as high an average as Germany's.

Holland has 674 persons to the square mile, and Great Britain has 504 to the square mile. The British figures include Scotland and Wales, which are made up largely of mountains and are not so well settled. If we take England alone, the number of people per square mile comes to about the same as Belgium's.

Italy is another country where claims have been made about a need for space. Italy has 372 persons per square mile.

By taking Austria and Czechoslovakia, Hitler added 21,000,000 people to his empire. He also obtained 88,000 square miles of land. This brought the population average down a little, but not a great deal. At that point, it was 330 per square mile, less than half the average of England, Holland or Belgium.

When German armies swept over half of Poland, they placed about 18,000,000 persons under their power. If peace had been made at that point, with Germany allowed to keep all it held of Poland, it would have made Hitler's empire include a population of well over 100,000,000.

Vike Cagers to Work Tuesday

Practice 3 Times Next Week and Daily Thereafter

WITH the first game scheduled early in December and with 16 games to be played, Lawrence college basketball squad will hold its first drill Tuesday afternoon, it has been announced by Coach Arthur C. Denney. There will be two other drills during the week but on Monday, Nov. 6, daily drills will be in order.

The Vikings lost four members of last year's team through graduation and failure to return to school. Norman Faleide, sensational little guard, probably was the biggest loss. Albert Novakowski left at the semester at which time he had completed his studies while George Bennetts didn't return to school this fall. Harry Jackson was the other loss. Faleide, Novakowski and Jackson were rated as regulars.

That leaves four lettermen around this year's team will be built. They are Wally Cape, forward, Ken Buesing, guard, Bill Masterson and Art Schade, centers. Members of last year's squad who didn't win letters but who probably will try for the squad are Leroy Lubenow, Art Kaemmer, Bob Smith, Joe Morton and Craig Hurst. The first two are guards, the others forwards.

Sophomores who are expected to join the squad are James Donohue, Don Frederickson, Frank Hammer, Gardner Hayden, Harold Kirchoff, Jarvis Lingle and Frank Nencki among others. Of the group, Frederickson appears to be the outstanding performer while Kirchoff and Lingle are tall men. They are ends on the football squad.

Coach Denney probably won't start planning his first team until he watches the men work but he hopes that he can use his tall players to advantage and that they'll improve. Masterson, Schade, Lingle and Kirchoff have the height that is needed for Midwest basketball while Buesing and Morton are fairly tall. Frederickson has a lot of ability and Cape has all the speed in the world if he can regain confidence in his ability.

The Viking season will open on Dec. 2 against Oshkosh Teachers here.

Denney also has announced the Lawrence freshmen basketball team's schedule. On Jan. 11 Ripon yearlings will be played here, on Jan. 19 the yearlings will go to St. Norbert, meet Ripon at Ripon on Feb. 15, and St. Norbert here on Feb. 25. The squad also will play Viking reserves, fraternities and the men's club in other preliminaries to home games.

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

THIS IS THE STORY of a football pool which went haywire, a story which may have a moral or may have two morals or maybe even three.

For the benefit of you and you who haven't heard about them, every week for the last couple years there have been available football pool betting cards. You have an opportunity to select three or more football winners from the list of Saturday or Sunday games offered. Where the games are even the bet is even; where one team is obviously stronger than the other the weaker team is given from 1 to 12 to 40 points.

If you pick three winners out of three selections you win $5 for $1, 10 for $1 if you pick four out of four winners, and so on up to $100 or $1 if you pick eight out of eight winners.

The first year the cards were out the boys who like such things put up $1 and made their guesses. It didn't take long for them to learn that it was a tough racket to win in because the handicaps made almost every game a tossup. And vagaries of football with such things as 70-yard runs for touchdowns in the last minute and fumbles on the 5-yard line only made it worse.

Since then some of the boys have made picking the teams a business in their attempt to win. They subscribe to all the dope sheets in the country, they tabulate scores, and they watch reports from sports writers and dopsters like Uncle Sam looking for home made hooch.

But while the boys continued to play the cards they cut their bets to 50 cents and they usually picked a minimum of teams but probably offered several cards with a varied selection. To them it was more or less fun, the fun of trying to beat something they felt was almost unbeatable. They're a stubborn lot, those guys.

Last fall certain persons in town regularly made a few dollars by betting $5 against $4 they could pick one team. They got their five

BE SURE THE TROPHY IS WORTH THE TRIP

By Buell Patterson

HEY say that big game is disappearing from this continent; that you can't have an urban civilization and fine farming communities and leave enough range for game.

But it's not over yet. Not as long as the Kootenay River country in British Columbia exists. There you rise up in the chilly dawn, 8,000 feet above sea level, shake off your stiffness and climb the knife-edge crests and sliding shale to reach the ridges looking down on the river. There you can see anything from a goat to a mule-deer buck.

If you have restricted yourself to a few days hunting and spent a tidy amount on it and put out for a guide, you want to get something for your money.

One of my friends who regularly hunts this country plans his trips like a business. He eliminates all uncertainties. "I haven't the endurance I once had," says he, "so I use every short cut I can devise. For instance I used to make a four or five hour stalk in a mighty rough territory to get within shooting range."

Guessing Size Difficult

"If I brought the game down I'd sometimes find that the horns were smaller than I thought or broken. Once I shot a buck deer with as fine a set of antlers as you could want only to see him pitch over a slide and drop fully 300 feet before he stopped. Now I go equipped with a 20-power B&L telescope so that I can study these fellows from a tremendous distance, their size, condition, horns, and their position before I shoot. I save myself every step possible and assure myself that the trophy is one I want. I find that shooting game is often more easy than getting to it and skunking it afterward. I have passed up as many as five heads in one day before finding one to suit me."

"One time during the close of my stay, I came across a bull moose in a willow grove. I had left my telescope behind, but from what I could see I estimated he had a spread of about fifty inches. I let him have it, and down he went, hit in the neck. "He's not so good after all. He won't go over forty-five," my guide decided. He was right. The horns were under forty and while forty is no slouch, the point is that good estimates have to be made with good eyes or with the best substitute you can find."

Washington versus Green Bay, (At Milwaukee)

New York at Brooklyn, Detroit at Chicago Bears, Pittsburgh at Cleveland

MILWAUKEE — The top-notch game on the National Professional Football league's Sunday schedule will get underway at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at State Fair park with the Green Bay Packers and the Washington Redskins facing each other in an inter-sectional grid conflict.

The contest will feature the leaders of the Eastern and Western divisions of the pro league. The Redskins are in a top place tie with the New York Giants in the eastern half of the loop, while the Packers and the Detroit Lions share the western division lead.

First View of Redskins Milwaukee will get its first view of the Washington club on Sunday. A crowd of more than 25,000 is expected at State Fair park, according to advance ticket sales, and additional seats are being set up to handle the predicted overflow.

The fans will witness a great aerial war when "Slingshot" Sammy Baugh of the Redskins and the Packers' famed Arnie Herber toss against each other. Both gridgers are famous for their accurate passes and have capable receivers to support them.

Green Bay's Don Hutson, fresh from his two touchdown runs off passes in last Sunday's game against Detroit, will be on hand to defend his laurels. In Wayne Milner, former Notre Dame star, Washington has an end who rates with the best in the league.

Two Great Tackles Aside from the passing duel, a great line clash is expected. Both clubs boast powerful forward walls. In Captain Turk Edwards and Bo Russell, playing his first pro year out of Auburn university, the Redskins have two of the greatest tackles in the money game.

Green Bay and Washington last tangled at the capital city two years ago, with the Redskins taking a 14 to 6 decision, the same year that Washington went on to win the league title and face the A. Stars at Chicago in 1938.

Menasha Bows To New London

Bulldogs Score Early on 70-Yard March; Harold Pucs Tallies

BY AL BRAULT
NEW LONDON — Avengeful Red and White football squad took the field against Menasha High school under the lights here last night and earned a second place tie with Shawano in Northeastern Wisconsin conference standings when it bested the Bluejays for a 7 to 0 victory. Except for Kaukauna's rampage last week, the Bulldogs maintained their defensive record of not being scored against by conference teams.

Behind a fighting line, Harold Pucs, lightweight halfback, carried the pigskin for New London most of the time, leaving short line plunges to Bob Houk, fullback. R. Sheleski proved to be the Menasha threat and toted the ball most for the Bluejays, on several occasions shaking off New London tacklers for gains of 20 and 30 yards.

The Red and White scored during the first period on a quick 70-yard touchdown march, and thereafter played pretty much of a defensive game. Vicious tackling dropped the Jay backs for losses totaling 16 yards but over-eagerness on the part of the New London line cost it 80 yards in penalties.

THE STATISTICS
First downs—Menasha 9, 6 by rushing, 2 on penalties and 1 on a pass; New London 8, all by rushing. Passes—Menasha attempted 14, completed 4 for 27 yards, had one intercepted; New London attempted 4, had one intercepted. Fumbles—Menasha 2, recovered 1, New London recovered 1. New London 2, Menasha recovered both. Penalties—Menasha 4 for 30 yards; New London 10 for 80 yards.

Yardage—Menasha gained 177 yards from scrimmage, 150 by rushing and 27 on passes; New London gained 155 yards from scrimmage, all by rushing. Menasha lost 16 yards in scrimmage and New London lost 8.

New London Marches
Menasha kicked off and after an exchange of punts New London started an offensive push from its 35 yard line. An opening penalty shoved it back to the 30 from where it rolled up five first downs to cross the goal line. Pucs did the heavy running with Houk plunging through the line for the last necessary yardage on two first downs. Pucs ran over the pay line from the 1-yard line on the last down, taking the leather from Melkielejohn on a fake. From a placekick formation, Bob Houk stepped through center untroubled for the extra point.

Menasha got breaks on New London fumbles in the second and fourth periods, falling short for a first down in scoring territory on two occasions and fumbling on the last opportunity which ended on the enemy 20-yard line with two minutes to play. A concentrated offensive in the third period netted five first downs and a total gain of 80 yards but all the scrapping was in Menasha territory.

Jays Threaten
In the second period the Jays got to the New London 11 when they recovered a fumble in the line of scrimmage on New London's 12. O'Brien and Wipich, the latter carrying the ball on a double reverse, got to the 15 where a short pass on the last down was successful but fell short of a first down.

Wipich, Menasha's left end, stopped a lot of New London plays in his direction and was just as aggressive on offense. Immediately after the first threat failed, he took New London's punt from mid-field to the Bulldogs' 37, from there tossing back to Sheleski who continued on to the 25. Two desperate passing attempts failed before the end of the half stopped play.

Pass Is Fumbled
About the middle of the fourth quarter another recovered fumble gave the Jays their third chance. Sheleski threw a pass from mid-field which was intercepted and fumbled by Bob Houk of New London and recovered by Menasha on New London's 35. The Bulldog line forced the ball back two yards on two plays and then two successful passes netted only 11 yards to miss a first down on the 26.

The invaders took the ball in mid-field on the return punt and plunked back to the 20. With two minutes to play, Sheleski fumbled the ball on a spinner maneuver and New London recovered. With stalling tactics, the Bulldogs got to mid-field before the time was up. Bob Houk breaking away unexpectedly for one jaunt of 25 yards.

St. Mary Gridders Will Meet Kaukauna
St. Mary gridders will tangle with St. Mary of Kaukauna in the feature attraction of a homecoming celebration at 2:15 Sunday afternoon at Spencer street athletic field. A parade will leave St. Mary school at 1 o'clock and wind up at the field.

BLOCKING DOES THE TRICK —

AP Feature Service
Louder than the rasping voice of the most exasperated coach, these pictures shout the meaning of effective interference. And the results of the games from which the pictures are taken might stand as pretty conclusive proof that the team which wins is the team which affords protection for its ball-handlers. In the top picture a Pennsylvania back is waltzing through an avenue cleared of hostile Yale blues. Penn won 6 to 0. Next picture down is one of the year's best, showing mass interference as illustrated by Louisiana State against Holy Cross. L.S.U. won 26-7. "Protection for the passer" is the lesson in the bottom picture. Alabama blockers kept Fordham rushers off of the way until the 'Bama hurler (58) could spot his man (16) and get the pass away. 'Bama won, 7-6.

The DOG OWNER and HIS DOG

BY ALLAN KERR
WISCONSIN retriever fans especially those who were fortunate enough to witness the brilliant performance of the "fetch" breeds near Oshkosh last year during the running of the Wisconsin Amateur Field Trial club stakes, would give a lot to know how David D. Elliott, Long Island dog trainer, makes his big Labrador dogs do everything but pluck and roast those ducks and pheasants.

Although Elliott's famous field trial champion, Banchory Night Light was only able to garner a fourth in the open all-age event in competition with the inspired Labrador handlers by Briggs and Hogan, the East Islip handler's dog worked with a willingness and machine-like precision that was a revelation to the spectators.

Until the current issue of Outdoor Life arrived on the news stand, we had never seen anything written by the dog man from Scotland. In this well written article Elliott gives us, in words and pictures, an insight into the mysteries of training and tricks of the trade. Only an ardent student of the game could have written, "He'll Give You the Bird."

State Might Ban Long Range Guns For Bird Hunting

Commissioner Catlin Says New Weapons are Spoiling Sport

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)
MADISON—The Wisconsin conservation commission has been warned that guns with exceptionally high ranges have been used in Wisconsin this fall during the bird season, and it is possible that such equipment may be banned from bird hunting grounds in the future, the commission announced today.

Complaint against the guns came from Mark S. Catlin, Sr., a member of the state game and fish body. He reported that new shotguns with an unusually long range are being sold and that a number are used in Wisconsin by Wisconsin hunters this fall.

Catlin maintained that the use of such guns has tended to ruin the sport for hunters using ordinary shotguns and has resulted in the crippling of birds that are far beyond the range of the average hunter.

Although the super-powered guns conform to present regulations, the commission is studying them with a view to barring their use next season, it was said.

The long range of the guns makes relieving the birds a greater problem, it was pointed out. Hunters were advised by the conservation department to consider the possibility of a change in the rules in buying new equipment this fall.

Conservation Director H. W. McKenzie reported that the conservation commission has not yet taken favorable action on a recommendation from local officials of Tilleda, Shawano county, that the state assume control of the Tilleda mill pond near the town for fisheries development. The commission has received a report on the proposed but not acted on it, it was said.

The commission has also decided to continue financial support of experiments in chemical control and treatment of Wisconsin lakes and streams.

Well Done Print Work No Expense, Is Roemer's View

Every Customer Gets Complete Satisfaction From Shop

Printing which is carefully planned and widely distributed is not an expense, maintains the Chris Roemer Estate Printers, 119 S. Appleton street. While it does cost something to produce, the right kind of printing, this firm believes, brings back in sales far more than its original cost.

Chris Roemer Estate Printers, point out that printing can be used to cover buying prospects so widely scattered that the expense would be prohibitive in making direct salesmen contacts. In addition, printed mailing pieces enables firms to keep in touch at small cost with former customers and perhaps make their accounts active again by informing them of special offers and newly-arrived merchandise.

Such promotion, Roemer Estate Printers continue, brings sales at reduced selling cost. Therefore, printing which brings results actually reduces the percentage of selling cost to the volume of sales and cannot be classified as an expense. The right kind of printing such as produced daily by this firm for many local business men therefore actually saves money than costs money. Good printing, clearly and attractively done is what counts in the opinion of the Chris Roemer printers. Roemer's customers agree that complete satisfaction is given to every order entrusted to this firm no matter whether it is promotion pieces, circulars, hand bills, letterheads, invoices, calling cards, or personal or business stationery. Businessmen are reminded by the Roemer firm in considering fall printing needs to check their supply at once for routine printed office requirements taken care of at this time will make possible another sailing through the Christmas business rush and give relief from attention to these minor but important details.

After A Man's Heart

by JEAN RANDALL

Enough recollection of the past to take only one of those outflung hands, and to give it a perfunctory clasp before dropping it. "To Kill Your Love" "Tim"—the word was almost a sob—"you aren't angry with me—still? But I forgot you don't know—the whole story. Come sit down beside me, dearest, and let me tell you." She did a soft hand into his and led him to the big couch. For nearly fifteen minutes she talked, her extraordinary voice pleading her cause as much if not more than her words did. In brief her story was that Latschaw, a man whom she had known from childhood, had pretended to sympathize with her love for Tim Corliss and to want to help him financially. He had proposed the neat plan to fool the Eastern promoters, "for Corliss's benefit." She had not known until the deal had gone through that Latschaw owned the land he unloaded on the young partners.

New Fishing Law Effective Nov. 21

Heil Signs Bill for Commercial Regulation After 2-Year Dispute

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Bitterly disputed over a period of two years, a new law for the regulation of the commercial fishing industry on Green Bay and other outlying waters of Wisconsin will become effective Nov. 21, it was announced as the result of the signature of Governor Julius Heil.

The new law, enacted by the conservation commission under authority granted to it by the state legislature in 1937, was described today by Harley W. McKenzie, director of the state conservation department, as a measure "to preserve and restore the commercial fishing industry."

"We hope that all fishermen will receive it in a cooperative spirit," he added, recalling that the matter has been discussed and debated at length at hearings in fishing communities and at conservation commission meetings over a period of two years.

McKenzie reported that the new statute will place Wisconsin's outlying water regulations in conformity with other lake states, and particularly Michigan. It was learned that the Michigan conservation commission sent representatives to Governor Heil this week to speak for the enactment.

The proposal has been fought relentlessly by certain representatives of commercial fishermen in the Green Bay and upper lake shore areas. Earlier this fall they had petitioned Governor Heil to make an investigation of the conditions in the industry to determine whether a law which they characterized as drastic was needed. Elmer Barlow, the governor's counsel, reported today that Heil had satisfied himself on the necessity for the law.

Farmers of County Buy 4,500 Tons Limestone

Waupaca—In 1939 Waupaca county farmers purchased approximately 4,500 tons of ground limestone from the county pit. Samples analyzed at the Wisconsin university laboratory, showed that the neutralizing value ran from 80 to 105 per cent. Screen tests also showed a grind running from 60 per cent passing a 60 mesh sieve and 90 per cent of the total passing a 6 mesh sieve. In other words, this agricultural lime was of a high quality and could be used for the growing of legumes. Letters were sent out this week to farmers to see if they wish this type of service continued. If 2,000 tons are ordered the project will be set up again so that farmers can obtain lime through the fall, winter and spring months.

Then, horrified at his duplicity, she had left Boulder. Tim clutched at his vanishing common sense. "But that note you left for me!" "Iris!" She let her long lashes droop until they almost touched the pearly whiteness of her cheek; then swept them swiftly upward to show him a mist of tears in her dark eyes.

"That was to—make you hate me, Tim," she whispered. "I told myself that after you'd found out about Latschaw and all, you'd never want to see me again, so it would be—be kinder to complete the job—to stab deeply enough—to kill your love for me. You'll never know what courage it took to write you that note, Tim!"

He reflected that he knew little about girls, and that little gave him small ability to analyze their motives. Dimly he felt that there were discrepancies in Iris's story; yet her presence here, the undoubted fact that she had bought up the land she had tricked him into—well, perhaps, tricked was the better word for what she had done—she had persuaded him to buy, bore out the truth of what she was saying.

"Where," he demanded, "did you get the money to buy all the land?" She said evasively that she had saved some of it and some had been left her by a great-aunt.

"What does it matter, anyway?" I bought it only to show you that I... I realized what a horrible person I must have seemed to you. Tim, and perhaps this is the thing that might help to convince you—I wasn't so bad as you thought."

"It was good of you, but unnecessary," he told her. "If the land was Latschaw's..." "If!" She pressed her hands to her heart in a gesture of anguish. "Tim, does that mean you still doubt me? After I've come back to you? After I've done all I could to make reparation? Tim, don't you love me at all?"

It surprised him that he could not answer this question. Certainly the old allure was there. Iris's voice, the satin black hair which grew from a widow's peak on her forehead, the grace with which she moved, the way she used her hands, even the faint perfume with which he associated so many happy hours, all combined to work their spell upon him. But dimly he realized that his reaction was purely emotional; that some part of his mind sat coldly and clearly in judgment, and found Iris's story lacking in truth; not all the truth, perhaps. He tried to believe that she was holding back only some girlish deception, some pretty feminine guile which she knew instinctively he would disapprove.

"Honestly, Iris, I don't know," he said after a silence. "It was wonderful of you to buy back that land; but I hate the feeling that Latschaw still benefits. And it's been nearly five months that I've lived through hades, trying to put you out of my mind. I... you must give me time to get used to having you here again."

Berliner Beer Is Aid to Cheering Up Indoor Season

Use Finest Ingredients In Brewing; Mader Is Distributor

With the indoor entertainment season now here with accompanying increased entertainment in the home and at popular recreational and amusement places, Berliner, the "beer of quality," made in Berlin, Wisconsin by the Berlin Brewing company, is the familiar sight on hundreds of family, restaurant, and tavern tables.

For parties of all descriptions, for informal visits and planned occasions, Berliner beer is today as always bringing cheer to many of these gay gatherings. It is being used to add to the tastiness of meals and luncheons and as a tonic for father and mother after a hard, long day.

At any social gathering (including the Hallowe'en and Thanksgiving parties which are the next social events on the social calendar) wise hosts or hostesses will be serving Berliner beer. Beer lovers like Berliner's smooth, mellow, pure, refreshing, and tangy taste so it is natural that Berliner should be particularly popular for all these purposes.

Pure, crystal-clear water goes into the making of Berliner along with the finest malt and hops available. Expert brewers carefully watch every bit that is made and proper aging imparts that added smoothness so necessary to make Berliner beer so palatable. For those who may not have as yet experienced the enjoyment of a bottle or glass or two of Berliner and to those who are already acquainted with this popular beer the local distributor, Sam Mader, suggests that now is an advantageous time to order a case and be ready for Hallowe'en and Thanksgiving entertaining. Tavern and home delivery service is available by phoning Sam Mader, 3029.

Mixed Claims Group Ignores Reich Protest

Awards About 50 Million in Sabotage Cases

HULL WON'T ACT

Refuses to Intervene in Black Tom, Kingsland Action

Washington (AP)—The German-American mixed claims commission disregarded an emphatic Berlin protest today and awarded approximately $50,000,000 in claims arising from the disastrous Black Tom and Kingsland, N. J., sabotage cases of 1916 and 1917.

The awards were made by Umpire Owen J. Roberts after the commission had found on June 15 that imperial Germany was responsible for the munitions explosions in the New York port area before the United States entered the World war.

Simultaneously, Roberts, an associate justice of the supreme court, disclosed that Hans Thomsen, counsel for the German embassy, had asked the state department to quash proceedings of what he called a "rump commission" and had charged "illegal" acts to Roberts.

Secretary Hull, in reply, refused to intervene and referred to Thomsen's criticism as "entirely unwarranted."

Damages of $21,157,227 plus 5 percent interest—estimated to approximate $30,000,000 in all—was ordered paid to the claimants.

Germany has a special deposit account at the United States treasury of between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 to meet the award. The treasury also holds about $500,000,000 "paper value," in German republic bonds.

Jurisdiction Denied

Germany, however, has denied the jurisdiction of the commission.

Dr. Victor Huecking, the German commissioner, walked out on the deliberations prior to the decision last June and the German government has protested against making the award. The German side of the counsel table was vacant today.

At today's session, attended by Umpire Owen J. Roberts and Commissioner Christopher B. Garnett, the latter announced he had duly notified Dr. Richard Paulig, German agent, of the meeting.

At the same time, the commission made public correspondence between Hans Thomsen, counsel at the German embassy, and Secretary Hull.

Thomsen protested to the state department against the procedure before a "rump commission." He told Hull that Roberts, who is also an associate justice of the supreme court, has "had no neutrality at all." Thomsen made "most emphatic representation" against the "illegal act of the umpire," and asked the state department to quash proceedings of the commission.

Cannot Intervene

Hull replied under date of Oct. 18 that he must refrain from engaging in a discussion of the various complaints and protests set out in your communication and content myself by stating that since the department is without jurisdiction over the commission, I consider that it would be highly inappropriate for it to intervene directly or indirectly in the work of the commission, or to endeavor, in the slightest manner, to determine the course of its proceedings.

"I have entire confidence," the secretary's letter continued, "in the ability and integrity of the umpire and the commissioner appointed by the United States despite your severe, and I believe, entirely unwarranted criticism, and I am constrained to invite your attention to

France's bridge players are contributing ten per cent of their winnings to a fund to buy airplanes for the army. Great idea. Of course, any one in this vicinity who is determined not to play any more, can sell bridge tables and other impediments (good though used) through The Post-Crescent classified want-ads. ### BULLET HITS CHILD

ACTRESS DIES

New York (AP)—Private funeral services will be held today for Alice Brady (above), stage and screen favorite for a quarter of a century. Burial will follow in Sleepy Hollow cemetery at Tarrytown, N. Y., for the dark-eyed actress who played one of her greatest film roles—Mrs. O'Leary in "Old Chicago"—while suffering from the disease that killed her. This performance won her an award from the National Academy of Motion Pictures in 1938. For more than a year, she had known she was stricken with cancer. Saturday night, she died quietly in her sleep only a few days before her forty-seventh birthday.

2 Found Guilty of Plot to Violate Securities Laws

Duffy Defers Sentences Pending Disposition of Another Case

Milwaukee (AP)—Federal Judge F. Ryan Duffy today found Sidney R. Ryan, 41, of Milwaukee, and Arthur A. Aschauer, 50, of Wiggins, Miss., guilty of conspiracy to violate federal securities laws by using the mails in connection with the sale of securities of Tung Industries, Inc.

He deferred pronouncing of sentence until a verdict is reached in the case of William A. Kenyon, 32, president of the Milwaukee Bond and Share Corporation, and Leon B. Smith, 57, salesman for the firm, who were indicted with Clark and Aschauer.

Kenyon and Smith also went on trial before Judge Duffy today. A fifth man, John W. Herron, 36, of Wausau, Wis., president of Tung Industries, Inc., was indicted with the others but has not yet been arrested.

Government Charges

The government charges that the men obtained $60,000 from investors in Milwaukee and southeastern Wisconsin by representing to investors that they were growing tung trees on many acres of land in Mississippi and that more money was needed to buy additional land. Actually, only 10 per cent of the land owned was planted with tung trees and these were not mature enough to bear fruit. The government charged, adding that the corporation was represented as operating at a profit whereas actually it was insolvent.

Judge Duffy found Clark and Aschauer guilty after they pleaded nolo contendere to the one count charging them with conspiracy to violate the federal securities laws by using the mails.

Clark is Sales Manager of the Milwaukee Bond and Share Corporation while Aschauer is a salesman for the company.

Last year Kenyon and Smith were convicted in the Dane county circuit court at Madison of charges of violating the Wisconsin securities law and were sentenced to prison, but the state supreme court reversed the decision on grounds that the short term notes sold by Tung Industries, Inc., were not securities under terms of Wisconsin law.

Embezzler Sentenced To Prison at Waupun

Oshkosh (AP)—Harry Parker, 40, of Oshkosh, was sentenced to Waupun state prison for a 1 to 4 year term by Municipal Judge S. J. Luchinsinger today.

Parker pleaded guilty to a charge of embezzling $1,953 entrusted to him for investment purposes by Miss Omanda Miller, Oshkosh.

The defendant was rearrested last Thursday after his release from Waupun where he completed a two-year sentence for obtaining money under false pretenses.

County Grand Jury Indicts Pendergast and O'Malley in Kansas City Insurance Case

Kansas City (AP)—Tom Pendergast, one-time boss of the Kansas City Democratic machine, and R. Emmett O'Malley, former state insurance superintendent, were named today in indictments returned by a county grand jury investigating settlement of the Missouri fire insurance rate case.

The county jury indicted Pendergast for bribery in connection with settlement of the $9,000,000 fire insurance rate case. O'Malley was charged with accepting a bribe in connection with the compromise.

Both now are in Leavenworth penitentiary serving sentences for federal income tax evasion.

Both pleaded guilty to the federal indictments which charged Pendergast received $315,000 for compromising the rate case and O'Malley

Three Counties in Missouri Asking Custody of Confessed Slayer of Flying Instructor

Macon, Mo. (AP)—Three Missouri counties sought custody today of Earnest P. "Larry" Pletch, 29-year-old barnstorming aviator and confessed slayer of his companion in a dramatic mid-air struggle.

Pletch, who told Indiana authorities he fatally shot Carl Bivens, 38-year-old Brookfield, Mo., flying instructor after they quarreled while in a plane over northeastern Missouri, faced possible charges to decide degree murder, kidnapping and airplane theft by Macon, Linn and Shelby counties.

Prosecuting Attorney Fred C. Bolow of Shelby county said a conference was planned by prosecuting attorneys of the three counties to decide which would prefer charges against the youth. Bolow expressed his belief Bivens was killed while in the air over Macon county although his body was found in a thicket near Cherry Box, in Shelby county.

Flying alone in a yellow monoplane, Pletch was arrested when he made a forced landing at Bloomington, Ind., Saturday night, almost at the same time Bivens' body was found. Coroner C. W. Musgrave said the instructor had been shot twice in the head.

Pletch is held in the Macon county jail here, where he was lodged. Turn to page 2 col. 6

Fliers Land After Month in Airplane

Long Beach, Calif. (AP)—Clyde Schlieper and Wes Carroll, the only men ever to live for a month in the sky, were the toast of the town today.

The 25-year-old fliers returned to Mother Earth yesterday afternoon after 30 days and 6 hours aloft. Their record of 726 hours far eclipsed the former standard of 653 hours, 33 minutes, established by Fred and Al Key near Meridian, Miss., in 1935. They winged past that mark last Thursday.

The long hours aloft softened their muscles and left them, temporarily, partially deaf. It seemed strange, they said, not to have the throbbing and throbbing song of motors underfoot.

The pair slept in beds last night for the first time in 55,500 miles. Naps in the plane were taken in two-hour stretches. The cabin gave them room enough to lie down, but not to roll over.

"You don't know how good it is to live like a human being again," grinned Carroll.

Testimony Completed In Salen Trial; Jury May Get Case Today

Waukesha (AP)—Testimony was completed today in the trial of Herman R. Salen, former Waukesha county district attorney charged with perjury and false swearing, and the case was expected to go to a jury late this afternoon or early tomorrow.

The jury of seven men and five women will receive the case following final arguments by Special Prosecutors Roland J. Steine and Winifred C. Zabel, Milwaukee, and Defense Counsel Edward J. Gehr, Hartford, and Lawrence J. Brody, LeCrosse.

One of the final witnesses, William M. McCauley, special prosecutor for the grand jury who resigned in August, 1938, testified that "to my recollection" Salen did not offer to testify before the grand jury.

Charges of perjury and false swearing were brought against Salen in connection with his testimony last year during the slot machine conspiracy trial which resulted in conviction and six-month sentences for eight slot machine operators.

Back to Draft Evader $300,000 to be Given

Washington (AP)—Grover Cleveland Bergdall, serving a sentence in a military prison, soon will get back $300,000 of an estate which the government guarded 20 years for him.

Attorney General Murphy has ordered that the convicted draft evader of World war days be given more than half the $335,540 worth of property seized when he fled to Germany in 1920.

To get the money, Bergdall had to consent to the government's keeping, temporarily at least, 20 percent of his property.

Dog Rescues Farmer From Attack by Bull

Merrill, Wis. (AP)—Sig Stevenson, town of Merrill farmer, nursed painful bruises today but thanked his three-year-old dog, Wimpy, for saving him from more serious injury and possibly death. The dog repeatedly charged and finally drove away a bull which knocked Stevenson down and gored him when Stevenson attempted to lead the animal from a pasture yesterday.

Move to Rush Final Action On Neutrality

Flint Reported to Have Left Port in Northern Norway

Stockholm Dispatch First Clue to Whereabouts Of Freighter

Stockholm (AP)—Reports from Norway today said the United States freighter City of Flint, released from a Soviet port by German captors, had departed from Tromsø, Norway, late this afternoon.

These reports were the first clue to whereabouts of the American vessel which was taken to Murmansk, Russia, by a German prize crew following her capture while carrying a miscellaneous cargo to England.

The City of Flint was said to have sailed at 4 p. m. (8 a. m. est) from Tromsø, the northern Norwegian port where the captured ship halted briefly on its northward journey to Russia more than a week ago.

Berlin (AP)—The American freighter City of Flint apparently was the quarry today in a grim game of hide-and-seek somewhere in the north Atlantic, according to the best available information here, but German officials were silent.

Unofficial sources said the United States government-owned vessel still was in the hands of a German prize crew and attempting to dodge the British blockade on a run from Murmansk, Russia, to a German port.

But officials said that until the City of Flint docks, there will be no information about this ship.

The American crew which was taken to the Soviet Russian Arctic port with the ship after its capture in the Atlantic was said probably to be still aboard, but as "passengers" without responsibility for navigating her.

Beyond disclosure that the ship had left Murmansk, authorities regarded information concerning her as a military secret and took the view that precise information on Turn to page 4 col. 2

Bar Galento From Illinois Rings

Horner Asks Investigation Into Charges of "Fixed Bouts"

Springfield, Ill. (AP)—Gov. Henry Horner said today he would order the Illinois Athletic commission to thoroughly investigate charges by Harry Thomas, former heavyweight fighter, in a published story, that he participated in "fixed" fights with Max Schmeling and Tony Galento.

The story was published by the Chicago Tribune, which said it had affidavits by Thomas which charged that the results of his match with Schmeling in New York Dec. 13, 1937, and with Galento in Philadelphia Nov. 14, 1938, were pre-arranged. Schmeling won by a technical knockout in the eighth round, while Galento won by a technical knockout in the third.

"Signor Galento doesn't fight in Illinois until this matter is cleared up," Gov. Horner said at his press conference. "No one is going to fight in this state under that cloud of suspicion. I'm going to have the athletic commission follow through and get to the bottom of this."

Shortly afterward the governor conferred with James R. Fitzpatrick, who with Chairman Joseph Triner and Sheldon Clark make up the Illinois sports governing body.

Claims $4,530 Taken From His Automobile

Milwaukee (AP)—The sheriff's office today investigated the reported theft of $4,530 from the automobile of Samuel Zorich, Wauwatosa tavern operator. Zorich said the money, drawn from a bank to cover a mortgage, disappeared while he and his wife were visiting at another tavern Saturday night.

Two Women Badly Hurt in Fall From Second Story Porch

Neenah—Two women, Mrs. Agnes Meyer, 216 N. Commercial street, Neenah, and Mrs. William Houpt, 331 Eighth street, Menasha, were injured seriously when they fell from a second story porch to the ground at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Meyer suffered a concussion of the brain, compound fracture of the left elbow and fracture of the left thigh bone, while Mrs. Houpt received fractures of shoulder bone and left side of the pelvis.

The two women were dropping a rug from the second story porch to the ground when the railing against which they were leaning broke off and they fell to the ground. They were taken to Theda Clark hospital in the city ambulance.

Gunman Gets $200 in Holdup at Manitowoc

Manitowoc (AP)—A gunman who used a 22 target pistol in holding up two employees of the C. Reiss Coal company, to escape with $200 in cash and checks was hunted by police today. Charles Sutter, company manager, and Rudolph Brey, a clerk, reported the holdup Saturday night. A similar weapon was used in a service station holdup at Two Rivers the previous Saturday night.
